Flee to Hills as Ice Gorge Flood Rises

As Balkan 'Big Four' Talked War Peril

Following their four-power conference in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, the Balkan countries are reported enlarging their military establishments in fear that the European war may engulf them, perhaps, as some observers fear, by mid-March. Pictured above at the Belgrade conference are the Balkans' "Big Four"—left to right: Sukru Saracoglu, Turkish foreign minister; Gen. John Metaxes, who is also prime minister and foreign minister of Greece; Grigoire Gafencu, Rumanian foreign minister, and Aleksandar Cincar Markovitch, foreign minister of Yugoslavia.

PENNSYLVANIA RESIDENTS IN DANGER ZONE

Army Engineers Asked to Use Dynamite on Ice Wall in Allegheny.

WATER FILLS STREETS

Stores, Homes Not Yet Hit; Ice Moves Down Along Ohio River.

(By Associated Press)

PARKER, Pa.—A steadily growing ice gorge jammed the Allegheny river today, forcing flood waters into low lying sections of this little community 60 miles north of Pittsburgh.

Some residents scurried for nearby hills as the river surged up ten feet within a few hours and passed the 23-foot mark, three feet above flood stage at this point.

Army engineers were asked to rush dynamite here to break the huge gorge which had formed in a bottle neck of the river at West Monterey, about four miles to the south.

A 12-mile stretch of the river from Monterey to Emlenton—Parker is between the two points—was clogged with the ice which piled to 30 feet in places. The wall of water backing up behind the gorge swept over the highway paralleling the river at this point, formerly Parker's Landing.

The water was several inches deep but had not reached the some 100 stores and houses along the street.

Natives at nearby Boxburg thought the river was frozen solid to the bottom, gasoline station attendant Harold Defibugh commenting:

"I've seen a lot of ice gorges on the river but this one acted more peculiar than any other. It was running pretty fast then slowed down gradually."

Hot sun and week-end rains started ice to breaking up on upper reaches of the Allegheny yesterday. Rivermen said the high

Dorothy Kilgallen Pens First Column for Us and You Sunday.

DOROTHY KILGALLEN, the 20th Century Nellie Bly and one of the top flight newspaper women in America, will become a member of The News-Journal's family of columnists next Sunday when her new syndicated column, "The Voice of Broadway" is added to the paper's daily features.

Miss Kilgallen who was literally born between editions—her father is James L. Kilgallen, internationally famous reporter and war correspondent—came into fame two years ago when she did a "Nellie Bly" around the world in 24 days, beating two newspaper men who were in the race.

This 27-year-old newspaper woman is an all-around reporter who has come up the hard way in the city room. She has covered everything from a debutante's wedding to the big murder trials of the day.

She was the first woman to fly around the world; the first to fly the Pacific in a passenger plane (the China Clipper); she covered the Bruno Hauptmann trial, the Hines' and the Luciano prosecutions in New York and many other court cases, all as a regular reporter for her paper.

She covered the coronation of King George and Elizabeth in London. She has "covered" Hollywood for her paper, pausing long enough to write a screen play, "Fly Away Baby," and to act in one, entitled "Sinner Take All."

Her "Voice of Broadway" column is already making journalistic history because of its instant success. It has been a hit on blase Broadway and in Keokuk. It carries the news of the Great White Way wittily, with verve and originality, but also with sympathy and understanding.

Her column will appear in The News-Journal daily except Saturday, and will be a part of the Sunday editions. The first column by Miss Kilgallen will be carried next Sunday.

Begin to Break Through Finnish Outposts, Claim

Reports Reaching Copenhagen Tell Of Russian Successes; Defenders In 'Grave' Position, But Still Can Hold Out Indefinitely.

BULLETIN

HELSINKI—(AP)—The Finns announced today that their army had repulsed heavy Soviet attacks in the Summa sector of the Karelian isthmus and also beaten back Soviet assaults northeast of Lake Ladoga and in the Kuhmo sector farther north.

(By International News Service)

COPENHAGEN—Shock troops of the Red army, achieving a measure of success after two weeks of relentless pounding against the Mannerheim line, have at last succeeded in capturing several outposts of the Finnish front line on the Karelian isthmus, according to reports received in Copenhagen today.

The outlook for Finland now is "grave," neutral observers said, although conviction was expressed that the Finns would continue to hold out indefinitely.

Reports of the Russian successes were given more credence than claims voiced in Moscow last week that the Mannerheim line had been "dented" in several places. These claims were ridiculed on two occasions by the Finnish high command which asserted that the enemy had "failed to gain a yard."

Numerous counter-attacks by the Finns have failed to dislodge the Russians from the outposts finally taken with a loss of life believed to approximate at least 3,000 men a day since the grand offensive began.

Despite the enormous strength of the Mannerheim line and the brilliant strategy of its construction, breakdown of the outermost defenses had to be expected sooner or later, according to military experts here, considering the huge numbers of men poured into combat by the inexhaustible Red army.

Estimate in Copenhagen said that since the offensive began, the Reds had lost at least 30,000 men, or perhaps one-third of the five divisions totalling 100,000 thrown into the attack.

Reports from Stockholm today said that Josef Stalin had summoned an emergency war council at the Kremlin, calling into conference War Commissar Klementi Voroshilov, Premier and Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and General Sjaposjnikov, chief of the Soviet general staff.

Alexander Schkartzov, Soviet ambassador to Berlin, also attended the meeting, leading to immediate speculation as to the possibility of further Russo-

Calls Council In Move To Avoid Fireman Suit

Mayor Sets Meeting For Tomorrow; City Given 30 Days To Comply With Law Or Face Action.

With an ordinance to reduce the police work-week still hanging fire, Mayor William J. Locke today hastened to call a special session of city council for tomorrow night in an effort to avoid a mandamus action against the city as the result of a state law reducing firemen's hours.

The Ohio Department of Industrial Relations has threatened to file the suit if the state law which became effective last September, is not put into effect here within 30 days.

Nelson Hovey, assistant director and legal advisor of the Ohio Department of Industrial Relations, notified Locke yesterday that Mansfield has been ignoring the law on firemen's hours which reduces the firemen's work-week from 84 to 72 hours.

Hovey advised Locke that unless this law was put into effect here within 30 days, the department would file a mandamus action in the appellate court of this district to compel such action.

Council considered the question of reducing hours of the firemen at the January meeting and referred it to the finance committee which was unable to find money to hire more firemen which would be needed if the present protection is to be maintained under the new law.

In the meantime, Mayor Locke was still considering the ordinance passed by council last week to reduce the working hours of police.

Locke has until Thursday night to either approve or veto the bill or let it become a law without his signature. City hall attaches were inclined to believe that Locke would let it become a law without his approval.

SNOW ON WAY

City Escapes Threat of Another Sleet and Ice Storm.

Escape from what started out as another ice storm was seen for this vicinity today, with the forecast calling for snow.

Heavy fog and mist began to freeze slightly and some sections of the state, especially around Lorain and Oberlin, reported slippery roads.

Route 30, east of Wooster was closed for a mile stretch, which was under water, the result of yesterday's thaw. Water also covered Route 3 north and south of Wooster.

From a high of 48 yesterday afternoon, temperatures skidded in Mansfield today, with a reading of 24 marked up at noon. The low was 23.

TAPS TAXES TO PAY VOTE BILL

County Gets Advance From New Receipts, Uses $5,500 to Meet Primary Costs.

The county had reached into its 1940 real estate tax receipts today for a $10,000 advance to pay expenses of the special congressional primary Feb. 6 and a part of the county operating costs for February. The election cost approximately $5,500.

Requested by county commissioners several days ago, the advance could not be made by the treasurer until tax collections passed the $35,000 mark. Receipts today exceeded $40,000.

The county's share of the tax receipts is based on its levy, and advances against the collection cannot be made until there is enough in the undivided tax fund to cover the amount requested when apportioned on a percentage basis.

County Treasurer John E. Kolb said statements had been mailed to Mansfield property owners today and that others will be sent out within the next two weeks.

Tax payments are being received now from those who received statements, but the tax books will not be open officially until all the statements are out.

The county's real estate tax bill for the first half of the year will be more than $750,000. First payments on the tax bill were received about two weeks earlier than anticipated because the county was pinched for funds.

Independent In Ashland Defies Election Board

Townsendite Circulates Petitions, Says He'll Demand to Have His Name Placed on Feb. 27 Ballot.

Turned down by the Richland county election board, J. E. Ringler of Ashland, a Townsendite, went ahead anyway today circulating his petitions as an independent candidate for congress in the 17th district.

Ringler, who claims the backing of Townsend organizations and "all the other voters who were disappointed in the special primary last week," said he would obtain 1,200 signatures on nominating petitions and then ask the election board to place his name on the ballot.

Pointing out that there is no statute providing for an independent candidate at a special election, the election board prepared today to order 25,000 ballots bearing only the names of the Democratic and Republican nominees. A special election will be held Feb. 27 to choose a successor to the late Congressman William A. Ashbrook.

"The secretary of state's office informed us that Ringler would have to obtain a court ruling to put his name on the ballot and we are going ahead with the order for the ballots with only two names on them," A. F. Porter, election board clerk, said today.

Gets More Petitions.

In Mansfield late yesterday to obtain more blank petitions from the election board, Ringler said he would circulate his petitions despite the board's order and take a chance on having them accepted as legal. The law requires filing of nominating petitions 60 days preceding an election.

"The board told me there was no law covering the filing of petitions by an independent candidate, but that doesn't mean that

WHAT TO DO

Mayor Asks Citizens' Advice on $500,000 Surplus.

MONTCLAIR, N. J.—(AP)—What to do with a $500,000 surplus in the town treasury was the question posed today for 10,000 residents by the five-man board of commissioners.

Each of the taxpayers received a letter, signed by Mayor William E. Speers, which asked:

"What do you think? Would you rather reduce the town's debt another $100,000, leaving $400,000 to cut down 1940 taxes or cut 1940 taxes for the full amount?" Postcards — postage paid—were enclosed for the answers.

Mayor Speers told taxpayers the 1940 tax bill would be $3,243,000—a "crease of about $500,000 from 1939—giving the town the lowest tax rate in 13 years.

BRITISH PICK UP NAZI CREWMEN

Rescue Sailors Who Scuttled Freighter, Set Her Afire Off South America.

(By United Press)

RIO DE JANEIRO—Rear Admiral Sir Henry Harwood, commander of British naval forces in the South Altantic, announced today that the crew of the scuttled German freighter Wakama had been picked up by a British cruiser.

The Wakama, 3,771 tons, was engaged in a desperate attempt with other German merchant ships to run the allied blockade with vitally needed supplies for Germany. It lay at the bottom of the sea off Brazil and British warships were believed pursuing other German freighters off the Brazilian coast.

The Wakama was scuttled by its crew as the 9,800-ton British cruiser Hawkins challenegd it between Cape Frio and Cape De San Thome yesterday.

Until Admiral Harwood's announcement the whereabout of the Wakama's crew had been a mystery and ships and coastguard

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—(AP)—This former stronghold of the Pendergast Democratic machine today held its strangest election — the machine's men were voting with the reformers to oust the machine's mayor and city council.

In the first election since the imprisonment of Boss Tom Pendergast and some of his leaders, the reform forces were sure of carrying a city charter amendment that will force a city election in April. James M. Pendergast, nephew of the boss, sent word "down the line" to support the amendment.

NULL, HE SAYS

Acting Mayor of Akron Claims Measures Passed Illegally.

AKRON—(INS)—Acting Mayor Edward O. Flowers said today that he planned to declare all business transacted by Akron city council at last week's regular meeting illegal.

Flowers based his announcement on the fact that Mayor Lee D. Schroy had left the city on an unannounced vacation, and therefore all measures should have been signed by Albert Keener, council vice-president, instead of Flowers himself.

Among the measures that would be declared illegal was the appointment of Leonard M. Bertsch to a six-year term on the civil service commission. Bertsch, a Democrat, supported Schroy, a Republican, in the last campaign.

Second Ex-Mansfielder Runs For Governorship of Illinois

If Harry B. Hershey, 54, is elected governor of the state of Illinois next fall, Mansfield history will repeat itself.

Hershey was born on a farm near this city, leaving here with his parents when he was eight years old. He is seeking the Democratic nomination as an ardent supporter of the policies of President Roosevelt and Governor Horner of Illinois.

More than a half century ago another Mansfielder was elected governor of that state, serving through one of the most turbulent periods in the history of the state.

He was Peter Altgeld, the "Forgotten Eagle" of Vachel Lindsey's poem and the biography of that title. Altgeld, like Hershey, was a small-town lawyer. He was born of immigrant parents, came to Mansfield when a baby and attended Mansfield public schools. After success had crowned his efforts in Illinois, he returned to Mansfield to marry the girl who was his first love and whose hand had been forbidden him by a stern father while Altgeld was a poor "Dutchman."

Exiled Prince Sees European Democracy Growing Out of War

More optimistic about Europe's future than most American analysts, Prince Hubertus zu Loewenstein, a German who lived under Hitler rule, said in a talk last night at Mansfield Senior high school that a democratic Europe, built on a confederation of states and a new order, may grow out of the present war.

Prince Loewenstein, an author and authority on Europe, was the second of four speakers in the Mansfield Rotary-University clubs' Institute of International Understanding. He spoke before an audience of about 700 in the high school auditorium.

"Crushing the Nazis is no longer the serious problem in Germany. The problem is now to save Europe and Christian civilization," Prince Loewenstein said.

"The feeling of unity is still very much alive in Europe and there is no hatred among the common people. They realize they must work together to exist and that Europe as a unity is much greater than Europe as a group of separate states.

"The German people are not militaristic and war-like as they have been pictured. They suffered through the last great war and

New Nazi-Red Trade Pact Swung to Impress World Foes

STALIN SAYS DEAL INCLUDES BROADEST HELP

$600,000,000 Agreement Will Establish German Plants In Russia.

(By International News Service)

BERLIN—The new Russo-German trade pact signed Monday in Moscow, encompasses a $600,000,000 deal designed to impress the world with the combined economic might of the two powers, it was stated on reliable authority today.

While all Berlin newspapers devoted their front-pages and banner headlines to announcement of the new agreement, informed quarters disclosed that Josef Stalin himself personally outlined the terms of the pact in a series of consultations with Hans Georg Von Ritter, German economic expert.

Stalin made it clear, these informants said, that he was not interested in small, isolated commercial deals but in "the most comprehensive Russo - German economic co-operation posible."

As a result, the treaty was drawn to provide for a commercial turnover between the two nations estimated at 1,500,000,000 marks ($600,000,000)

Under its terms, Germany undertakes, among other obligations to establish in Russia important industrial plants such as artificial rubber factories, smelters and oil refineries.

In exchange, the Reich will receive huge supplies of grains, minerals, oils, manganese, iron ore, flax, hemp, etc.

In the past, trade between Germany and Russia has never even approached 1,000,000,000 marks annually, but this figure is now to be increased by fully 50 per cent.

Wife Believes Taft Has Good Chance In Race

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Mrs. Robert A. Taft was of the opinion today that her husband had a pretty good chance for the Republican presidential nomination and that women should take a more active part in politics.

Of her husband she said: "Nobody has this thing in the bag. I think Bob has a very good chance."

Of women she said: "I think women are troubled about the direction America is going in as far as their children are concerned. They tuck their children into bed at night and when those children wake up in the morning the debt is increased $11,000,000, which those children will have to pay in taxes. It is a very serious matter, and mothers are concerned for the future of their children."

His remark obviously was a slap at the United States' neglect of the league after it was created.

ASSERT FINN, CHINA WARS NO THREAT TO U. S.

Secretary of State Informs Committees Department Watches Europe.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Cordell Hull, it was learned today, has notified the senate foreign relations committee that he is vigorously opposed to proposals to invoke the neutrality act in a Russian-Finland and Japan-China conflicts.

Hull's opinion was sought on a resolution introduced by Sen. Guy M. Gillette, D., Ia., to make the neutrality act effective against Japan and China, and a similar proposal by Sen. John A. Danaher, R., Conn., to invoke the law against Russia and Finland.

"Enactment of this law is not in accord with the state department's program," Hull said in a letter to Committee Chairman Key Pittman, D., Nev. He added that his department is keeping in close touch with the European situation, and that he believes that he can handle it without involving the United States.

Hull pointed out that the United States is in no danger as the result of the Russian-Finnish and Japanese-Chinese conflicts, and that, therefore, there was no need to invoke the neutrality act in those disputes. Under the law, the act can be invoked when a state of war exists between two or more foreign nations and when the peace and security of this country is threatened.

The senate will vote today on a bill to increase the Export-Import bank's capital by $100,000,000. Under the proposal, Finland could obtain $20,000,000 in addition to the $10,000,000 already obtained through the bank.

Democratic and Republican leaders said there was no question but that the measure would be approved.

Meanwhile, Joseph P. Kennedy, American ambassador to Great Britain, arrived here to confer with the president on foreign affairs.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Pegler Likes the Film 'Pinocchio,' He Calls It Double Infidictimous

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—All my superlatives were used up on Walt Disney's last picture, the "Snow White" show, so that this one, "Pinocchio," catches me without symbols fit for the occasion. Perhaps I should make up some, as the late Joe Humphreys used to do in some of his orations from the Garden ring, world's champion of wonderful pals through sunshine or sorrow, James J. Walker, who wasn't even there.

The mention of Mr. Walker's name evoked prolonged cheers, attended by the throwing of hardshell rolls and olives.

At the lower end of the table a noted jury fixer got into a fight with a blackmailer specializing in insurance and boom-time building construction over the deadly but obviously imponderable issue of which one knew Mayor Walker better and loved him more.

Ignoring this diversion, Mr. Humphreys continued to soar in the rare, pure atmosphere of his own admiration for Mr. Walker until presently, as was his wont sometimes, when common language proved inadequate, he began to gibber.

Mr. Disney's "Snow White" put me in a state two years ago, and my praise, written in an emotional condition, was the only document of the kind of which I have never felt a willingness to retract at least a little. Yet, on seeing "Pinocchio," I have a sense that the same terms applied to this marvelously beautiful and nimble creation would seem surly.

Only one of Mr. Humphreys' improvised words ever remained with me. It was not one of his very best, but it may give you an idea. At the climax of his eulogy, Mr. Humphreys declared that Mr. Walker was not only noble, generous, brave, kind, wise, honest and loyal to the last gasp, but was positively infidictimous.

My friends, for "Pinocchio," that goes double.

TOOTS OWN HORN

Just the Cops' Little Helper Was This "Genius."

SALT LAKE CITY- Patrolmen Clarence T. Smith and Louis W. Duncan found all quiet when they answered a complaint that the horn of a parked auto was sounding intermittently.

As they turned to leave, the horn sounded a minute or so. They learned the owner had rigged up an attachment to toot the horn every ten minutes. The idea was to help the police in case the car was stolen.

Conductor Foils First Skirmish In 8-Cent Fare War

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Cleveland's street-car riders pay a 10-cent cash fare.

Peter Witt, anti-management member of the Cleveland Railway company's board, says the legal fare is 8 cents. Today he drew battle lines by advising all riders to pay only 8 cents.

Witt showed himself a true general by boarding a car and dropping a nickel and three pennies into the box. This preliminary thrust at the "enemy" was checked, however, as a cool conductor dropped in the other two cents.

Balked in his hope for arrest and a subsequent trial to determine the legality of the present traction rate structure, Crusader Witt declared:

"This is what I am going to pay for street-car rides from now on."

No one else tried it. Meanwhile, company officials sought legal advice as to what till to tap to pay back the two cents to the conductor.

CONDEMN TITLE

Cleveland Ministers Oppose Papal Envoy's Rank.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Cleveland Ministerial association wants President Roosevelt to withdraw the rank of ambassador from Myron C. Taylor, emissary to the Vatican, and retain him "merely as a personal envoy to the pope."

A resolution expressed "gratification" with the president's peace efforts and his "practical and promising expedient" of attempting to unite "the three great religious faiths of America," and added:

"It appears to us, however, that it is unfortunate that the president conferred ambassadorial rank upon his personal representative to the head of the Roman Catholic church. This act is contrary to the tradition and expressed law of the land."

Two prop men couldn't carry the log, but Haade, given the job, picked it up alone and did the smashing. . . . His reward: Beery conks him with an axe: Haade has been acting ever since. About five years ago Mildred Cram wrote a short novel, "Forever," which Janet Gaynor promptly bought for $15,000. Janet has cherished the film rights ever since.

It must be quite a yarn for pictures. Norma Shearer has offered Janet as much as $150,000 for it, and Janet has had other offers. But she's keeping it for Janet Gaynor.

At least one actor is off the list of mail-order beauty contest judges. It's John Howard, who has done yeoman service in that cause year after year — but no more. He won't even judge one for his home town, Cleveland, Ohio. Reasons: the judging is done by portraits, and portraits do lie.

Besides which, if I may say so, contest-judging is one of the surest ways for an actor to get his head the right-hand as far as the newspapers and their families are concerned.

RIVAL REGIMES IN CHINA SPUR ON ASSASSINS

All Shanghai's Records of Terrorism Broken During 1939, Dispatch Says.

(By United Press)

SHANGHAI—Political assassins and bomb-throwers in Shanghai during 1939 shattered all local records for terrorism, leaving more than 40—including several women—known dead and scores of wounded in the underworld warfare between the opposing Chungking and Nanking Chinese factions.

February was the record month, with nine assassinations, including that of one Nanking cabinet member, occurring.

The pro-Chungking terrorists—believedly Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's famed "Blue Shirts"—were more successful than the Nanking gunmen, both in numbers assassinated and the caliber of men they removed from the political scene.

During the closing months of the year, however, the pro-Japanese terrorists allegedly allied with Wang Ching-wei were increasingly active and killed several Changhai editors and educators known to be sympathetic to Chungking.

One American, Albert F. "Tug" Wilson of Philadelphia was killed July 22 when he walked into the line of fire during a gun battle between police and a gang of pro-Nanking terrorists raiding a pro-Chungking Chinese newspaper.

Dane Only Foreign Victim.

H. P. Krogh, Danish employe of the Great Northern Telegraph Co., was the only deliberate foreign victim of the terrorists during 1939.

On Aug. 18, gunmen fatally wounded Krogh outside his home after Japanese authorities had accused Krogh of tearing down and trampling the Nanking regime's five-barred flag from a Japanese-controlled Tatao police station near the International Settlement. Krogh, however, denied the accusation.

Heading the list of prominent personages assassinated was Chan Lu, foreign minister of the Japanese-controlled Nanking regime and formerly China's minister to France. He was killed Feb. 29 during a dinner celebrating the Chinese New Year.

The assassins escaped as they did in most of the cases, despite vigorous efforts by police and foreign armed forces, inciuding U. S. Marines to crush the political warfare in the foreign areas.

Marquis Li Killed.

Another prominent man who fell under assassin's fire was Marquis Li Kou-chi, grandson of China's famous diplomat, Li Hung-chang. The assassination followed reports that he was preparing to accept the post of minister of communications with the Nanking regime.

Terrorists allegedly allied with Wang Ching-wei and the Japanese were unable to remove any outstanding Chungking official or supporter locally because these men left in 1937 when the Japanese occupied Shanghai.

The pro-Japanese terrorists consequently centered their attacks against the lesser-known editors, reporters and educators who were engaged in spreading anti-Japanese propaganda.

Three armed Chinese killed Kuo Hsin-chi, popular columnist of the American-owned Chinese edition of the Shanghai Evening Post-Mercury. Two days earlier, Kuo, in his daily column, had written his "last will" in which he said he preferred "the death of a martyr" to submission to the Japanese, thereby rejecting threatening letters warning him he would be assassinated unless he ceased his editorial attacks on Wang Ching-wei.

NUGGET WORTH $525

MARYSVILLE, Cal. (U.P.)—A prospector who refused to give his name or tell where he was working came to town to have a gold nugget, which he had dug up, weighed by Frank Mooney, local gold buyer. It weighed 15 ounces and was valued at $525, making it second in size and value to the $800 "horned toad" found in the Indiarst ranch district two years ago. The nugget kept out-of-sight from the miner's poke as he brought it up.

HEALTH CHIEF WARNS VICTIMS OF INSOMNIA NOT TO USE PILLS

(By International News Service)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—A warning against the use of pills to combat insomnia was voiced by Dr. Thurman B. Rice, of the Indiana Department of Health.

Dr. Rice listed four chief causes of sleeplessness:

1. The rush and drive of modern civilization.
2. Hunger at bedtime.
3. A psychological attitude which is destructive of the real reason for going to bed.
4. Being too cold to sleep.
5. A whooping case of imagination.

Antidotes for fighting the tension caused by a strenuous day, suggested by Dr. Rice were: Eating carefully at dinner, reading something soothing rather than stimulating, playing with children, sprinkling the lawn, taking a hike or watching the fire in the grate.

Dr. Rice is a staunch advocate of raiding the refrigerator, if you're hungry at bedtime, but cautioned against eating indigestible food. Crackers and milk are soothing, he said.

He recommended placing an extra blanket over the foot of the bed so that it can be reached easily, if the night turns suddenly cold.

Insomnia to some extent is imaginary, he said, and cited the case of a man who snored all night with vehemence and then complained all day about not having slept a wink.

Dr. Rice takes little stock in traditional methods of inducing slumber.

Never put in an extra eight hours work trying to fall asleep by counting sheep, reciting the alphabet forward and backward and practicing auto-suggestion, Dr. Rice said. If you just aren't sleepy, relax and rest with your eyes open. You probably will drop off into slumber before morning, he added.

Don't worry if everything fails and you just can't sleep, he said. Loss of one night's slumber isn't fatal.

U. S. SHIPPERS WORK CLOSELY WITH BLOCKADE

Co-operate With British on Contraband Control to Avert Friction.

By ANDRUE BERDING

WASHINGTON—(AP)—American shipping interests, shelving their rights under international law, are working with the British to eliminate causes of friction.

As a result, many annoyances with Britain that plagued the state department during the early days of the World war have been avoided. It has given the department a strong talking point, too, when it had occasion to protest against alleged violations of American rights.

"It is my belief," Secretary Hull said in a recent note to London, "that such a spirit of liberality on the part of American shipping interests should be met by a corresponding degree of accommodation and flexibility on the part of the British government."

The cooperation being practiced by American maritime interests comes under five main headings:

1—"Navicerts." This hybrid, standing for navigation certificates, is issued by British consulates to American shippers. It certifies the British consul has satisfied himself that the cargo of a ship sailing from an American port does not contain contraband and is destined to a neutral, not to Germany. Possession of a navicert generally means speedier handling for a ship if it is overhauled by a British (or French) warship.

2—Airmailing manifests. On invitation of the British authorities, American shippers are airmailing to the British ministry for economic warfare their ships' manifests showing the composition and destinations of the cargo. The manifests arrive in time for British authorities to check over the items and destinations in advance. An average of three days is saved in handling the ship's examination when it reaches a control port.

3—"Black diamond guarantee." This made its appearance only a few weeks ago. It works like this:

An American ship bound to Genoa, Italy, is stopped at Gibraltar. The British examiners are not satisfied that some items of cargo are not really destined for Germany. Rather than undergo long delay while the consignees are checked, the shipping company gives a "black diamond guarantee." The captain says, in effect:

"If you let me proceed, I will guarantee not to unload these items at Genoa unless meantime your checkup has shown they are O. K. If your checkup shows they are suspected I guarantee to bring them back with me."

The guarantee took its name from the Black Diamond Steamship company, which first employed it with the British.

4—American steamship companies have retained legal counsel in London to work with officials of the British ministry for economic warfare to facilitate their cooperation.

5—American shippers have accepted the British contraband list. They are turning down cargoes which they believe to be suspicious, that is, of a contraband nature and ultimately destined to Germany.

GIRL AT THE FRONT + + + + +

By ROB EDEN
(Copyright, 1940)

CHAPTER XXIV

Rene Martin, again in his Nazi flying uniform, tossed down two parachutes to Claire and Bill, and while they helped each other adjust the straps, snatched the opportunity for a cigarette.

Soon the girl was climbing into the rear cockpit, Cameron helping her, and then he crawled up and took the second seat beside her. During this time Rene was keeping up a running fire of conversation.

"Afraid I wasn't going to make it this time," he said. "A plane picked me up shortly after I passed the line—I crossed in broad daylight, but I wanted to get here before dark if I could. Too risky trying to land among all these trees without some light."

"You mean you were followed?" Cameron exclaimed.

"Yes. Another Messerschmidt ship like this one I have. Apparently, he'd been hanging around waiting for me—there must be a leak somewhere in Paris. I had a time getting away from him, and he almost clipped me before I did lose him. A tracer bullet whizzed past my ear so closely I could almost feel it. I finally lost him over the mountains."

"Hope he's not still hanging around," Claire said nervously as she adjusted her safety belt.

"All right, folks, here we go!" Rene cried, and speeded up his motor for the take-off. "That fellow may still be around somewhere. Anyway, I'm going very high. Better chance to dodge in the clouds."

There was a breath-taking moment as the ship skimmed over the ground and it appeared that they surely wouldn't clear the tops of the trees surrounding the clearing, but at the last second Rene pulled back sharply on the stick and the plane soared upward with room to spare.

It was cold and Claire huddled down in the cockpit, protecting her face as much as possible from the rush of air as Rene climbed higher and higher. Then for some time the movement of the ship was gentle, even. She couldn't hear Rene and Bill talking because she had no earphones but she knew they were talking.

Suddenly Rene put the ship, which had been cruising along at about 8,000 feet, into a sharp climb.

"Nazis!" he exclaimed. "Not one this time—a dozen. My pal went out and got his friends!"

"They're after us?" Cameron asked.

"Yes. Be sure your safety belts are secure. I may have to do some acrobatics. If we have to bail out, I'll give the signal."

Cameron couldn't see that anything could be gained by shouting the information Rene had just given him into the ear of the girl at his side, but she sensed something was wrong when he reached over and examined the fastenings of her safety belt.

"Anything wrong?" she screamed.

He shook his head, but she knew he wasn't telling the truth. His face beneath his helmet and goggles was too grim. Nervously she clasped the bag containing the remnants of the food Frau Weber had given them and to which she had clung as she climbed into the plane.

"What is it, an enemy plane?" she shrieked, her lips almost touching Bill Cameron's ear.

"Yes!" he shouted back. "But don't be afraid!"

His hand reached for hers and grasped it firmly. His palm was warm against the back of her cold hand, and a pleasant feeling of comfort went through her.

She looked up at him and smiled, and her lips formed the words: "I love you, Bill." He smiled back at her, suddenly leaned forward and kissed her lips.

Meanwhile, the plane was streaking toward France at better than 200 miles an hour. How Rene had spotted the enemy planes neither Cameron nor Claire could imagine. It was completely dark now, and the stars were like a spangled ceiling above them. High in the air—they were more than 12,000 feet—it was as clear as crystal, and getting steadily colder.

Claire huddled down in her seat, hugging herself with her arms, trying to keep any warmth there was left in her body.

Cameron heard Rene's voice suddenly through the phone, and there was a note of elation as he told him he had outdistanced the fleet that had tried to intercept him.

"We're not out of the woods, yet, though," he added. "They'll probably have another gang waiting for us along the line. All we can do is trust to luck."

Rene dropped the plane down to about 8,000 feet and leveled off. It was too cold at the higher altitude. Ice had begun to form on the tips of his wings, and he dared take no chances on slowing his speed.

For an hour they raced along without incident, Bill and Claire rejoicing at every mile they put behind them, for each mile brought them that much closer to safety.

It was more comfortable at the lower altitude, but Claire still shivered.

"We're two hundred and twenty-five miles toward Paris," Rene called into his mouthpiece, and Cameron smiled as he answered, "Good work, Rene!"

For ten minutes more they shot through the air, and then Rene suddenly started into a steep climb.

"Just as I expected," he shouted. "They're after us again!"

"How do you know?" Cameron shouted back.

"Can't you hear them?" Rene called.

Cameron strained his ears, removing his earphones, but he could hear nothing. He decided that Martin must be possessed of a sixth sense, which he had read somewhere every good flier must have.

Even Claire was aware of the danger, however, a few minutes later. Rene had climbed higher and higher until her ears ached, and then she heard a faint rat-a-tat-tat.

"Machine guns!" she screamed at Cameron, and he leaned toward her and nodded.

"If we have to go overboard, remember the count-ten business!" he shouted. "Be sure to clear the ship before you pull your 'chute cord."

Claire nodded that she understood. Both of them could hear the ominous rattle of the machine guns now. Although they couldn't see the Nazi planes, they knew they were there. Tracer bullets streaked like comets through the air, bracketing their plane.

Rene put his ship into a dive. Cameron could tell this by the singing of the wind against the struts. Suddenly Bill, who was leaning forward against the front of the passenger cockpit, started to unbuckle his safety belt.

"Rene's hit!" he shouted at Claire. "I'm climbing over and taking control. When I signal, go over the side. Good luck and God bless you!"

Claire reached out her numbed hands to hold him back, but he already was out of reach. She fumbled with her safety belt and finally got the snaps open.

The plane had been diving out of control, but quickly now it righted itself. Leaning forward, Claire saw by the dim light from the instrument board that Bill had taken the stick.

Instinctively he ducked as a burst of machine gun bullets swept the ship. He was tugging at Rene and had him half out of his seat while his feet braced the stick on an even keel.

Claire saw that he had the wounded Frenchman in his arms, and then he signalled her. It was unmistakable, his gesture. His thumb went up and then over the side, and she knew the plane must have been struck in a vital spot. Taking a deep breath, the girl climbed onto the seat and poised for a moment on the edge of the plane. Breathing a prayer, she let go and automatically began to count as she hurtled down, down. She had counted twenty before she realized why she was counting, and then she tugged at the ring of the parachute which was on her breast.

She knew she was falling. It was a terible feeling, like a nightmare in which she seemed to be tumbling off the edge of the world. Then there was a violent wrench, and she felt as if her shoulders were pulled out of joint. But blessed relief! She had stopped falling! She was floating in the air, and dimly above her she could see the white inner side of the parachute billowing out, catching the air!

A vagrant thought flashed through her mind as she floated between the heavens and the earth. She now was a member of the Caterpillar club.

U.S. ANTARCTIC EXPEDITION OFF FOR YEAR'S SURVEY

SLED DOGS...YEAR'S SUPPLY OF SLOW-BURNING CAMEL CIGARETTES ACCOMPANY ADMIRAL BYRD TO ANTARCTIC

OFF TO VOLUNTARY EXILE: Right now if you had to choose the one and only brand of cigarette you would smoke through a whole year—you'd make sure you picked the right brand. The men on the Antarctic expedition were in a situation like that. The expedition took Camels! Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd explained: "Slow-burning Camels are a great favorite with us." You, yourself, may never go near the South Pole, but the right cigarette is important to you, too. Camels give you extra mildness, extra coolness, and extra flavor—plus extra smoking in every pack. (See below.)

"MORE PLEASURE PER PUFF...MORE PUFFS PER PACK"...

That's how these three members of the U. S. Antarctic expedition tell of the advantages of their favorite cigarette...slow-burning Camels. Richard Moulton, senior dog-driver (center), sums up when he says: "Slow burning is my measure of a milder, cooler, more flavorful smoke. I'd sledge a mile for a Camel." Nothing destroys a cigarette's delicate elements of flavor and fragrance like the excess heat of too-fast burning. Cigarettes that burn fast also burn hot. Camels are slower-burning...milder, mellower, and—naturally—cooler! Try Camels. Find out for yourself how slow-burning Camels give you more pleasure per puff ...and more puffs per pack—more actual smoking (see panel extreme right).

SMOKERS:
SAVE THE COST OF THE STATE CIGARETTE TAX

Smokers who live in communities where certain state cigarette taxes are in effect can save the cost of the tax—and, in some instances, more—through smoking Camels. (See panel at right.) When you are a Camel smoker, you get this unique economy—and all the extra enjoyment of cooler, milder smoking—the fragrance and delicate taste of finer, more costly tobaccos.

In recent laboratory tests, CAMELS burned 25% slower than the average of the 15 other of the largest-selling brands tested—slower than any of them. That means, on the average, a smoking plus equal to

Mansfield Cage-Goers to See Waterloo Thursday

FROM out of the hills of southern Ohio, a team so skillful and astounding in its performance that it marked an epoch in Ohio basketball five years ago when it went to the state tournament.

Unknown and even without a nickname, the team won the high school championship in the Class B division. It came to the tournament just plain Waterloo high school. The cagers might have been called Waterloo Wizards, but they preferred to be known as the Waterloo Wonders.

Members of the original Waterloo Wonder team are still playing under that banner, but as professionals. And they will face the City Class A league All-Stars at Mansfield high school Thursday night.

Unbeaten the year it first reached the state tournament, they extended their schedule the following season. Every coach that saw them in action in the state tournament of 1933 at Columbus, wanted them for an opponent. They played three, four and five games weekly to capacity crowds.

The Waterloo Wonders ran their victory string to 69 in a row, all but a dozen played on foreign courts, before they finally met defeat. They played over 100 games in two years and won all but a half-dozen of these. They took the second straight state high school title.

In the second year when the Wonders had become known, they showed before over 100,000 fans. The final game in which they won their second straight state title was played before 11,000 fans, a record crowd for high school basketball in Ohio and a capacity gathering at the Ohio State fairgrounds coliseum.

The state tournament set an attendance record that year, and all because of Waterloo.

Four of the boys graduated that year, but so insistent was the public in its desire to see Waterloo, that the Wonders were given special dispensation by the Ohio School Athletic association, the following season. Although an independent team they were permitted to schedule high school opponents along with meeting foes in the semi-pro and professional classes. The Wonders continued to win many games and lose few. In three years, they won 150 games and lost a dozen.

There were no giants in the Wonder lineup. The tallest are short of six feet in height. Beryl Drummond, youngest member, along with Orlyn and Wyman Roberts, cousins, are near that stature. Curtis McMahon is about the same height. All four of these were one year or another, all-state mentions in the all-star team named from the tournament players.

At center for the Wonders in their campaigning this year is Wilmer "Big Bill" Hosket of Dayton, Ohio. Hosket was center-man on the Stivers high school team that won three straight tournament championships at Columbus and all state each year. He later was all-Big Ten center on the Ohio State team of 1935, that won the Western conference championship.

Waterloo is just a bend in the road down on the border of Lawrence and Gallia county. The centralized high school there attracts pupils from both counties. Until their second year, the Wonders didn't even have a home court for their practice. They used an outdoor court until the dead of winter.

Ohio's high school tournaments have presented many glittering teams in more than a quarter century that they have been conducted, but none has ever come to the tourneys to be more of a sensation than the Waterloos.

* * *

Unerring passing accuracy and brilliant shooting are but a part of their stock in trade. The Wonders are natural showmen, their type of basketball is different. They have added superb trickery to a stock of skill.

When a cross-roads basketball team is good, it usually is very good indeed and such are the Waterloo Wonders.

Tony Galento Offers Big Bet Against Louis.

ORANGE, N. J.—(AP)—Tony Galento, who says his eyes "are 100 percent," offered to bet anyone $10,000 today that he'll stop Joe Louis in five rounds this July when they meet for the world's heavyweight boxing championship.

Galento spiked a rumor he was going blind, saying he'd match his eyesight with that of anyone.

Illinois Five Tips Wildcats

Stages Brilliant Comeback In Final Half.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Those Hoosier basketball twins, Purdue and Indiana, continued today to set a blistering pace in the drive for the Big Ten basketball championship—but right at their heels was scrappy Illinois and its redoubtable captain, Bill Hapac.

Purdue and Indiana advanced smoothly past the conference's halfway point last night, the Boilermakers taking Chicago into camp, 52 to 30, and Indiana's hot Hoosier routing Michigan's fading Wolverines, 57 to 30.

Iowa won its third conference game at the expense of Ohio State 43 to 33.

But it was Illinois' great uphill fight which stole the evening's show and stamped Coach Doug Mills' club at the one most likely to harry the current leaders right to the finish line.

Illinois defeated Northwestern, 35 to 33, after being behind for 35 minutes. At the half Northwestern led by 10 points. With less than five minutes to play Illinois took a one-point lead, only to see Northwestern tie up the game again. Then Hapac, who scored 34 points Saturday night against Minnesota, broke away from Dick Klein to score the winning field goal with 50 seconds to play.

Wisconsin snapped its losing streak by downing Minnesota, 36 to 34, Gene Englund sinking the winning goal in the final two minutes of play.

Tygers Hope to Avenge Ashland Defeat Tonight

Mansfield Hoopsters Hosts to Crack Longley Club on Bengal Court.

A BASKETBALL setto that promises to provide more than its share of thrills will be unfolded before Mansfield fans in the Senior high gymnasium at 8:15 p. m. today.

The contest brings together the Mansfield Tygers and Ashland high's North Central Ohio conference hoopsters.

Ashland won a wild 32 to 27 victory at Ashland recently and anything is liable to happen tonight.

Coach Vern Hoffman's club will be seeking its 10th win of the season and the game marks the first of two home appearances for the Tygers this week. Canton McKinley invades the Tyger lair Saturday night.

The Ashland win was the first ever scored over a Mansfield quintet since Mentor "Red" Longley has been coaching there and his proteges will be out to do it again.

Although the Ashlanders have dropped two in a row—one to Wooster and the other to Marion—the Tygers will probably have their hands full. If Vince Barr breaks loose with one of his scoring exhibitions Mansfield may have a battle finishing on top.

Barr looped in 10 markers in the last game between the two schools, and the Tygers will have to tighten up their defense to halt him.

Jack Shiplet and Gene Miller are scheduled to start at the forwards tonight, with Russ Beer at center and Don Rose and Harry Phillips at the guard posts. Phillips moved up from the reserve team to share one of the guard berths with Bill Herpich.

* * *

The only Richland county league team in action tonight is Union, which treks to Hayesville. Other tilts tonight send Tiro to Plymouth, Wakeman to New London, and Shreve to Big Prairie.

PLAY THURSDAY NIGHT

NEW HAVEN — The Plymouth high cagers invade New Haven high to clash with the Yellow Jackets in a Twin-Valley league contest Thursday night. The preliminary game starts at 7:30 o'clock.

One of baseball's great pitchers, Rube Marquard still is in there pitching. But Rube now demonstrates his fast delivery dishing out mutuel tickets from behind a wicket at Hialeah Park race track at Miami, Fla. Rube pitched with the Giants.

TONIGHT'S GAMES

Wakeman at New London.

Irish Cagers Stop Gerber, Halt Toledo

Notre Dame Holds Lanky Scoring Star to 3 Points In 38 to 30 Win.

COLUMBUS—(U P)— Have basketball foes found a vulnerable "Achilles Heel" on Toledo's sensational Bob Gerber?

The lanky sophomore who set a sizzling scoring pace last month has tallied only 18 points in his last three games to fall behind Frankie Baumholtz of Ohio U. in the individual Buckeye point-making contest. Gerber has 264 points against 280 for Baumholtz.

Notre Dame was the latest court squad to shackle Gerber, holding him to three points last night and defeating Toledo, 38 to 30. It was the fifth defeat of the season for Toledo which has 19 wins.

Toledo held the Big-League Irish even for the first 15 minutes and then trailed, 17 to 10, at halftime. Captain Pat Hintz of Toledo paced the scoring with 14 points while George Sobek had 12 for Notre Dame.

John Carroll roared from behind in the last two minutes to trim Akron for the second time this season, 30 to 27. Bill Young, football star, was the court hero for Carroll with two field goals which put Carroll ahead for its ninth triumph against five losses. Young totaled 11 points while Ed Endress of Akron had 12.

* * *

Xavier absorbed its 15th setback when Kentucky rallied in the closing minutes to win 37 to 29. Bert Robben of Xavier was the offensive ace with 18 points.

Muskingum plays at Ohio U. in tonight's feature.

The two schools will start play at the tournament at 6:30 p. m. at the Ashland college gym.

With four games scheduled for the night of play, the lid lifters will be followed by the Nova-Hayesville game at 7:30, after which there will be the Sullivan-Jeromesville contest at 8:30. Last game of the first night is between Ruggles and Savannah.

On the second day of the tournament, on Thursday, Feb 23, the winner of the Perrysville-Polk game will meet winner of the Nova-Hayesville game at 7:30. At 8:30 the winner of the Sullivan-Jeromesville game will meet the winner of the Ruggles-Savannah contest.

On Saturday night, Feb. 24, the consolation contest will be played at 7:30, and the game for the county championship at 8:30.

Referees at the tournament will be Royd Hodge of Bellville and Earl Reichert of Mansfield.

LISTED AS HOLDOUT

PHILADELPHIA—(U P)— Eldon C. (Chief) Hogsett, 36-year-old southpaw hurler drafted from Minneapolis was listed today by the Philadelphia Athletics as their third holdout.

Church A Clubs Clash Wednesday

In contests in the Church Class A basketball league at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday night, St. John's Evangelicals play First Methodist, First Lutherans tackle Park Avenue Baptist, and Mayflower clashes with Central Methodist. The first game is scheduled to start at 7 p. m.

'Chappie' Gets Northern Job

Ex-Fremont Pilot to Head Superior, Wis., Club.

FREMONT (U P)—James (Chappie) Geygan bid goodbye to the Ohio State baseball league today after five years of service and packed his bags for Superior, Wis., of the Northern league.

The veteran diamond character was appointed manager of the Superior club yesterday by Branch Rickey, jr., director of the Brooklyn farm system of which Superior is a unit.

Geygan has been in the Ohio State league since its inception, serving with Sandusky and Marion before coming to Fremont in 1938 where he won a pennant his first year and finished second last season.

* * *

Ray Caldwell, former Cleveland and New York Yankee pitcher, was regarded as Geygan's likely successor at Fremont. Operation of the Fremont club, however, depends upon the success of a $3,000 club stock sale.

Crawford Clubs Open Tourney

County Class B Cage Affair Starts Tonight.

BUCYRUS — Chatfield and Whetstone schools, first ranking teams in Crawford county, are in the same bracket in the annual Crawford county Class B basketball tournament to be played in Bucyrus High school auditorium Feb. 13, 15, 17, 21 and 24. Drawings were held Saturday in the office of County Superintendent Glen C. West.

Chatfield is matched with Lecsville in the opening game Tuesday night at 6:30 and in the second game Whetstone, the only undefeated team in the county, will play New Washington. Holmes-Liberty last year's champs will meet Lykens in the third game and North Robinson and Tiro will clash in the last game.

* * *

Chatfield, Whetstone and Sulphur Springs are all in the upper bracket. Sulphur Springs drew a bye and play the winner of the New Washington-Whetstone game on Thursday night. The bye in the lower bracket was drawn by Mt. Zion which places them against the winner of the North Robinson-Tiro game Thursday night.

Tigers Rally, Trim Bombers

Scoring 15 points in the last period, the Tigers defeated the Bombers 30 to 28, in a Senior Colored league game at the Friendly House yesterday. Clemens led the winners with 12 points and Cash was high for the losers with 15.

The All-Stars defeated the Wildcats by the same score. Moore of the winners and Brown and Woodbury of the losers being the scoring leaders.

Play Benefit Tilt Wednesday

Madison high cagers and the Mansfield high Junior Tygers, who were scheduled to clash on the Senior high hardwood last night, will tangle at 8:15 p. m. Wednesday, Athletic Director Harry Mehock stated today. The game will be staged to raise funds for the infantile paralysis campaign.

School officials are conducting a ticket sale at both schools.

Wednesday's tussle should be an interesting one. Madison, in second place in the Richland county basketball league title chase, possesses a dangerous scoring attack, and should it set that attack in action the reserves may have their hands full.

The Juniors principal task will be to throttle Doug DeNero, sharpshooting Ram center. His backboard bombardments have been one of the reasons Madison has been in the thick of the county circuit race.

A preliminary contest will open the program at 7:15 p. m.

Vosmik Sold To Brooklyn

CLEVELAND—(U P)—As far as Joe Vosmik is concerned, the Brooklyn Dodgers are definitely pennant contenders.

The Boston Red Sox outfielder, who makes his winter home here, was sold to the National leaguers yesterday for $25,000 after being waived out of the junior circuit.

"Larry MacPhail, Brooklyn president, said several months ago that all the Dodgers needed to make them a pennant contender in 1940 was a hard-hitting outfielder," Vosmik commented. "Well, they've got that outfielder. There's nothing wrong with my batting eye and I expect to have a big season."

Plan Cage Tourney At Friendly House

The tourney will be open to all Richland county youths 16 years old and under. Each entry may have eight players on its roster. Entry blanks may be secured at the Friendly House, and the deadline for filing them is March 9.

JOCKO LEADS SCORING IN INTERMEDIATE LOOP

Jocko was high-point man in the Intermediate league as he paced the Rams to a 45 to 21 victory over the Lions. Jocko tipped in 14 points. The Bears edged the Red Birds, 23 to 22, in the other game at the Friendly House last night.

Henry Michaels Leads Team to 2798 Count With 634 Series at Meder Alleys.

HENRY MICHAELS and the Liederkranz club were high in the scoring columns in the Club league at the Meder alleys last night. Michaels, who opened with a 203 and finished with a 232, came through with a 634 and he led the Liederkranz club to a 2798 total, which included a closing 1025 score.

Despite the fine total, the Liederkranz club dropped two games to the Lumbermens Mutuals, who were favored with a 278-pin handicap per game.

The only other 600 rolled last night was compiled by Pete Linster of the Richman Clothes, who hit 613. He led his team to three wins over the Page Dairys.

Marrino, Mundo, Survive Wild 'Battle Royal,' Former Wins Semi-Final Bout.

TIM NOLAN'S Monday night Quality club wrestling shows are like women. Or something. Anyway . . .

About the time you think you can't stand 'em any more, or that you're completely fed up, they up and surprise you—pleasantly.

And wrestling fans have been surprised by impresario Nolan's wrestling shows—plenty—during the past couple of weeks.

There was the Finnish Relief fund card last week and then last night's match—both were really worth while. Like women, the shows were better than you thought.

Take last night's battle for instance. From the opening battle royal with its slugging, tripping and gouging to the whirlwind finish between Davey Reynolds and George Becker, it had the fans plenty excited.

Becker took the first fall in 21 minutes with a top body press after Reynolds had missed with a kangaroo kick. For sheer speed and making and breaking of holds this fall was the season's tops. Neither could hold the other for any length of time.

The second fall went to Reynolds in 13 minutes when he did make connections with his specialty, the kangaroo kick, and fell on George to pin him with a top body press.

In the final setto both boys were so groggy, it looked, after 20 minutes, as if neither of the two would be able to finish. They slammed one another around the ring, used arm locks and Reynold's scissors, perfected by Davey's cousin. Both used flying butts to floor themselves simultaneously. Both were up at nine, but Becker had the most stamina and was able to fall on Reynolds when he missed again with a flying kangaroo kick, thereby winning the decision.

In a wild and wooly semi-final Bull Marrino's superior strength and ring experience proved too much for the light and inexperienced Larry Mundo, of Illinois. Marrino took both falls, the first in 10 minutes, second in nine, to win the match.

High point of this imbroglio was Mundo's courage. He took everything. Five times he was slung outside the ring in the first fall. Fans asked Referee Clarence Miller to stop the bout. Mundo asked no quarter, however. In fact, the fifth time he was thrown from the ring, he came around back, knocked Marrino out of the ring as the Bull peered into the crowd looking for his opponent.

Once again he knocked Marrino out. But the "Bull" came back, and as Larry lunged in a flying tackle, he sidestepped and fell on his opponent for the count. The second fall Bull won with three body slams, two solid rights to the jaw and a top body press.

Frank Wolfe, the Australian wild man, proved too much for Charles Layden, Hoosier husky. Wolfe's leg twist was too, too punishing and Layden was forced to give up in 25 minutes.

As for the battle royal, which opened hostilities, there was something! Slugging. Gouging. Hair-pulling, gang-ups and treachery—all went along with the fight among the five men. Marrino, Mundo, Layden, Wolfe and Mansfield's own Bob Steele.

All that, plus the fact that the four others jumped him at once, eliminated Bob Steele in two minutes. Next the boys jumped Wolfe. Layden got him in a full Nelson and Marrino's well placed blasts to the mid-riff finished him off.

Next Bull jumped Mundo, kicked him out of the ring, then turned his attention to Layden whom he had promised to help polish off Mundo, and, whom he floored neatly with a right to the jaw, a knee to the groin and a top body press. Except for a couple of swings Marrino took at Mundo that ended the battle.

BUYING SUPPORT ATTRACTED BY SELECT ISSUES

Cheerful Earnings Reports, Signs of Business Hikes Encourage Traders.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK - Selected stocks attracted moderate buying support in today's market.

While dealings slowed up a bit after a fairly active opening, gains of fractions to a point or so were well distributed.

Bonds did better. Commodities were mixed, as were foreign securities markets.

Cheerful earnings reports and signs here and there the business recession was flattening out brought some traders back to the bullish ranks, brokers said. At the same time the cloudy domestic political picture and confusing European wars tended to maintain speculative conservatism.

Market students found some encouragement in the weekly statement of reporting federal reserve member banks in 101 cities disclosing that in the week ended Feb. 7, commercial, industrial and agricultural loans increased $19,000,000.

A constructive indicator was seen in a retail survey showing 70 per cent of independent stores selling men's suits and coats enjoyed a pickup in January sales of 17 per cent over the like month last year. Higher level of industrial payrolls and more rigorous weather conditions were said to have been factors in the improvement.

FOUR SUNK

British Report Losses Total 19,809 Tons in Week.

LONDON — (INS) — During the week ending midnight, Feb. 11, Great Britain lost four vessels totaling 19,809 tons, France lost no ships and neutral nations lost three aggregating 10,128 tons, it was announced officially today.

The announcement said British convoys escorted 8,284 ships from the beginning of the war up to Midnight, Feb. 7, of which 18 were lost including two neutral vessels. Of these one was mined and the second torpedoed.

It was pointed out, however, that the U-boat which sank the convoyed vessel was sunk itself after attacking the convoy.

British losses from the beginning of the war to midnight, Feb. 11 amounted to 148 ships totaling 550,569 tons, the announcement said. France lost 14 boats with a tonnage of 76,689, and neutrals lost 120 ships totalling 352,485 tons.

SAWYER AGAIN CALLS FOR F.D.R.

Asks Ohio Dem Leaders to Back Third Term; Wants Davey as Delegate.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS — Charles Sawyer, Cincinnati Democratic national committeeman, today asked Ohio Democratic leaders to support President Roosevelt because "we cannot hope to achieve success unless we give our unqualified support to him and his program."

In Columbus for a series of conferences preceding the joint meeting Saturday of the Democratic state central and executive committees, Sawyer recommended the inclusion of Sen. Vic Donahey, former Sen Robert Bulkley, and former governors James M. Cox, George White and Martin L. Davey in the delegation to the national convention in Chicago.

"I am hopeful that Saturday's meeting," he said, "will result in a constructive and harmonious program."

Adding that the meeting should assure proper representation of party opinion, he declared:

"My interpretation of that opinion is well known, as is my personal attitude toward the president. I feel that we cannot hope to achieve success unless we give unqualified support to him and his program."

G. O. P. Hits New Deal As Undermining U. S. Tradition

PARTY HEADS BLAST DEMS IN LINCOLN TALKS

Capper Takes Hot Shot at F. D. R. on Third Term; Hoover Asks Statism.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON —The 1940 Republican campaign was keyed today to meet a third term nomination—if it comes with charges that the Roosevelt administration has failed and the New Deal has undermined American traditions.

Party oratory echoed from coast to coast last night at 700 Lincoln day gatherings preliminary to Friday's meeting of the Republican National committee at which the place and date of the party's nominating convention will be fixed.

Lincoln day language and strategy demonstrated Republican eagerness to bid strongly for the vote of women, negroes and independents. Mrs. Robert A. Taft, wife of the Ohio senator who seeks the presidential nomination, and Aaron Payne, Chicago negro leader, were given top billings. They, with National Committee Chairman John D. M. Hamilton addressed the principal party gathering sponsored by the National Republican club in New York city.

Republican presidential candidates led the general attack on the Roosevelt administration. They charged that it would lead the United States into war, that it sought centralized totalitarian powers, that it has divided class against class, stripped the states of rightful powers. They asserted the country should regard renomination of Mr. Roosevelt as "a plan to overthrow the American system."

Emphatic and repeated were the objections voiced at the administration's relations with business, it borrowing and spending policies.

Sen. Arthur Capper, R., Kan., of the Progressive wing of the party, fired unexpectedly hot shot at Mr. Roosevelt in a Baltimore Lincoln day address. His renomination, Capper said, would and should be regarded by the nation as "a plan to overthrow the American system." He said he never had maintained that "everything President Roosevelt has done is wrong"—but:

"The most dangerous leader of any people is the leader who believes that he, and he alone is qualified for leadership. And that is why Franklin D. Roosevelt, with all his charm, with all his genuine desire to better the lot of the people of the United States and of the world, is the most dangerous man to the welfare of the people of America today."

Former President Herbert C. Hoover in what was described as a resumption of politicalactivity after a period spent on Polish and Finnish relief matters, warned in Omaha, Neb., against a trend toward "statism, he defined as the theory that said, was to shift the nation's ideas and point of view. Statism, he defined as he theary that government officials can direct or operate a people's economic life. He warned that such trends led to overthrow of democracy in a dozen foreign countries.

Taft, himself, speaking at a relatively obscure meeting in Greensboro, N. C., said the country faced a fundamental decision: "Whether we shall remain the kind of country which our forefathers made and Lincoln preserved, a republic protecting the individual rights, the freedom and liberty of its individual citizens or a totalitarian executive with unlimited power to rule the lives and activities of individuals and local governments alike."

ASK INJUNCTION

Heirs Contest Delivery of Loudonville Property.

ASHLAND — Tesumony has been heard here in common pleas court in the action of Amanda Booker and Eva Zubrod vs. James Blair, executor, Barbara M. Hollinger and Ellen Oliver, a suit in which the plaintiffs ask that an injunction be issued to prevent delivery for Loudonville property.

The action which follows one in the Allen county court in Lima, where the will of the late William H. Lambert was set aside, also asks that the deeds for such a transfer be adjudged fraudulent and void.

The last of the series of Lambert wills, set aside in 1938 in the Lima court, bequeathed certain property in Loudonville to Barbara Hollinger who was not a relative, it is alleged.

Inmate Pays Penalty For Day's Liberty---Hands, Feet Frozen

Harold Smith, 24, who escaped from Ohio State Reformatory early Sunday morning was back there today—with partially frozen feet, a day's liberty to remember and a penalty of "additional time" to contemplate.

Smith was captured at 8 p. m. yesterday by Erie railroad detectives in Marion. He was wandering around the railroad yards there, with his feet and hands—poorly protected from the weather—partly frozen.

He was brought back to the reformatory, where he will be given medical attention—as well as that above-mentioned penalty.

Smith, who was sentenced from Allen county, escaped from the institution's hospital early Sunday morning with Joe Frolicher, 21, of Cincinnati. Both were semi-orderlies in the hospital.

Frolicher is still at liberty.

Smith said he and Frolicher parted company and that the latter apparently headed for his home in Cincinnati.

The two made their getaway, apparently about 7:30 a. m. Sunday, by lowering themselves from an unbarred window in the reformatory hospital to the ground, a few feet below. The hospital is outside the reformatory walls.

Guards, sent in pursuit when the two inmates were found to be missing at the 8 a. m. count, traced them to a nearby highway but there lost the trail.

PLEADS GUILTY

Youth Captured in Burglary Held for Grand Jury.

Washington Carter, 21-year-old colored youth, who was arrested early yesterday when he attempted to rob the Ideal lunch room and tavern for the second time, pleaded guilty in municipal court this morning to a charge of breaking and entering and was bound over to the grand jury under $1,500 bond.

Carter was captured at the tavern on North Bowman street road by George Urdia the proprietor, who had slept in his place of business for five weeks waiting for the return of the person who had burglarized his place on Jan. 5.

When sheriff's deputies arrived, they found Carter on the floor, securely bound. Urdia said he slugged the intruder after he had pryed open a window and crawled into the room.

The house was occupied by the Kenneth Arter and Kenneth Chapman families with whom Brown resided. Both families including five children fled to safety. When the fire was first discovered about 6:30 p. m. the entire second floor was in flames and only a few pieces of furniture from the first floor were saved.

Several out buildings were moved out of range of the fire, but the main structure was burned to the ground.

Britain Expands Air, Navy Patrols.

LONDON—(AP)—Great Britain is expanding her air and naval coastal patrols suddenly and swiftly to smash Germany's mine-and-bomb blockade of British shipping.

The admiralty announced it was recruiting 10,000 additional fishermen for naval patrol duty in the war against German mines. The air force, with a big British plane construction program already in effect, was disclosed to be buying heavy planes from "at least one other air-skilled neutral" besides the United States.

CHOP ANNUAL NAVAL SUPPLIES BY 128 MILLIONS

Committeemen Recommend Bigger Ships and More Research on Planes.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — National defense felt the sting of the current congressional economy wave today when the house appropriations committee reported the navy's annual supply bill with $128,015,949 lopped off President Roosevelt's budget requests.

Providing funds for operation of the navy department for the fiscal year starting next July 1, the reduced bill totalled $966,772,878.

Although more than $50,000,000 above last year's appropriation, the measure represented a $111,699,699 reduction below Mr. Roosevelt's recommended appropriations, and $16,316,250 less in contract authorizations.

The measure provides $340,371,979 for the naval building program, a cut of $28,628,021 under budget estimates. Funds are provided to lay down 19 fighting ships, including 2 new battleships, 2 aircraft carriers, 2 cruisers, 8 destroyers and 6 submarines. Funds are provided to begin construction on five auxiliary vessels.

In its economy sweep, the committee provided for a naval enlisted strength of 150,000, which is 2,000 less than Mr. Roosevelt asks. It fixed marine corps enlisted strength at 25,000.

Braving Japanese fire, the committee recommended authorization of a $3,000,000 project to make the harbor of Guam, far-Pacific island, safe for sea planes. It denies the navy's request for funds to buy anti-submarine nets for American harbors on the ground that there is no emergency.

Reducing funds to carry on construction of two 45,000 ton battleships authorized last year and to lay down two new battleships and cruisers, the committee called for super-ships.

It pointed out that plans for 45,000-ton battleships can be revised to make bigger ships even though preliminary work has started on two of them. The bill provides funds to continue building of 79 new ships, including 8 battleships, 7 cruisers, 2 aircraft carriers, 42 destroyers and 20 submarines.

The committee slashed the navy's airplane program sharply, but called for more research. It declared that many army and navy airplanes are obsolete by the time they are put in service.

The bill allows $99,563,300 for naval aviation, with contract authority of $10,000,000. This will make possible purchase of 576 new airplanes.

DIES AS AUTO FALLS IN RIVER

Galion Salesman Drowned as Car Plunges 55 Feet Into Scioto at Delaware.

GALION—George R. Chyba, 43, of 135 Harding Way West, a salesman for the Gledhill Road Machinery company, was drowned at 8 p. m. yesterday when his automobile dropped 55 feet into the swollen Scioto river, six miles west of Delaware on State route 37.

Chyba was alone in the car. His auto plunged into the river at the east end of a bridge on route 37, as he rounded a curve at the bridge and ran through a guard rail.

According to officers who investigated the accident, Chyba had been at a farm house east of the river and was going to another on the other side when the accident happened.

The accident was discovered by Stanley Humphreys and Hobart Arthur, farmers, but the body was not recovered until two and a half hours later. Sheriff's deputies, highway patrolmen, state highway workers and volunteers aided in recovering the body. Coroner A. R. Callander gave the drowning verdict. The tail light of the car remained burning as it lay on its side in the water.

Born Dec. 31, 1895 in Cedar Rapids, Ia., Mr. Chyba had lived in Galion three years, coming from Delaware. He was formerly general manager of the American Crushed Rock company of Delaware, and for three years was an engineer on the Boulder Dam project. BURTON LEAVES WITHOUT G. O. P. ENDORSEMENT

County Leaders Meet Senate Candidate Here But Balk at Supporting Him.

After spending several hours yesterday as guests of Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland, candidate for the Republican nomination for U. S. senator, Richland county G. O. P. leaders said today they will not endorse "Burton or anyone else" for senator before the May 14 primary.

Burton had luncheon yesterday at the Mansfield-Leland hotel with party leaders from six counties, gave a short talk and then conducted a question and answer forum.

He said he was here to "get acquainted with people in the rural sections of Ohio," but party leaders saw his visit as a bid for committee endorsements in northcentral Ohio.

Remembering their embarrassment two years ago when they endorsed a losing candidate for senator who refused to back the winner after the primary, the county Republican heads said they had no intention of making an endorsement again until after the primary.

"If Congressman Dudley White (Burton's opponent for the senatorial nomination) wants to come here, we'll be glad to have him too," Ralph Hardy, executive committee chairman, said today.

6 Counties Represented.

About 20 executive and central committee chairmen and other party big-wigs from Richland, Ashland, Crawford, Wyandot, Knox and Morrow counties accepted Burton's invitation to have luncheon with him here. Marion county committeemen were invited, but did not come.

Burton went to Mt. Vernon last night to speak at the annual dinner meeting of the Knox County Lincoln-McKinley club. On the same program was J. Harry McGregor, Republican nominee for congress in the 17th district.

Before leaving Mansfield yesterday, Burton termed as "ridiculous" charges of Labor's Non-Partisan league that he was attempting to set up a "$2,000,000 political slush fund to finance his campaign for senator."

The league fired the charge yesterday at Cleveland after Burton left the city, accusing him of adding $2,000,000 to a proposed operating levy in Cleveland which will be voted on next month.

"That charge is made by persons who know nothing of the operation of a city government. The $10,000,000 levy is actually $400,000 less than is actually needed for government expenses," the mayor said.

PRINCE LOOKS FOR DEMOCRACY IN OLD WORLD

Tells 700 at Institute Session He Sees New Order Growing Out of Present War.

have not forgotten The extreme cold, lack of fuel and clothing and the resultant suffering this winter may materialize into representative government," he asserted.

"With the resources of Great Britain and the United States backing the Allies, Hitler's army leaders may realize that the odds are overwhelmingly against a Germany victory and refuse to continue a conflict that would mean disaster if Germany loses.

"The mission of the United States is great—it is a mission of peace," Prince Loewenstein said. "This country can best serve Europe as an arbitrator and an example for the warring countries. In Germany there is much respect for the United States. The people there liked the attitude of the United States after the World war.

"The living together of many races here in harmony is an example of what the Old World nations should be some day, and if the United States keeps that impartial attitude it can become a modern world arbitrator."

Hits Munich Pact.

Had England and France remained loyal to the principle of democracy in September, 1938, before the Munich agreement, Czechoslovakia would not have been destroyed and war might have been avoided, Prince Loewenstein asserted.

"It seems doubtful in that event if Hitler could have forced the hand of his generals In our opinion, the man who stands by while another man is knocked over the head is just as responsible as the one who does the knocking," he continued. "To build democracy in Europe, there would have to be a just peace treaty and Czechoslovakia and Poland would have to be restored as sovereigns."

The rise of Hitler and dictatorship in Germany, he said, can be traced directly to the treatment Germany received in the Versailles treaty following the World war. Many Germans felt defenseless in a legal as well as military sense; they felt their sacrifices had been in vain.

"The repeated invasions of German territory after the war led to a complete breakdown of German economic life and the people were willing to trade their freedom for security under a dictator," he said. "In times of stress the people are usually willing to listen to propagandists and accept a scapegoat."

"One of the major threats to world peace could be the possible development of racial hatred in America," he asserted. "I have talked to many people here who are afraid that propagandists may be able to create a spreading hatred between races. After all, nations and humans are the same everywhere. It is a question of leadership, not of characteristics of the people."

Prince Loewenstein, whose book, "After Hitler's Fall," made him so unpopular with the dictator that he was literally run out of Germany, devoted most of his talk to Germany, France and England which, he said, are the leading European powers.

Asked in the forum period that followed his lecture what he would do about Russia, he replied: "I'm not so sure that Russia shouldn't be considered as one of the 'United States of Asia' and does not figure in the European picture."

Like most commentators, he thinks Italy will go with the side that's winning and promises the most in return.

"Even Mussolini doesn't know yet what Italy will do in the present conflict, because he doesn't know what price he'll get to join with the forces."

Critical of England's diplomatic relations in Europe, he added that "England is always so kind-hearted until she is asked to give some of her colonies, then she says, for instance, 'there's Czechoslovakia, you can have it'."

Prince Loewenstein, who speaks remarkably clear English considering the time he has been in this country, came here from Germany about five years ago. He is the founder and secretary of the American Guild for German Cultural Freedom, made up of exiled Germans.

Prince Loewenstein was introduced last night by Atty. William F Black, vice president of the University club.

The speaker next Monday night will be H. Canfield Cook, World war flying ace and author and lecturer on aviation. He will speak on "The Influence of Aviation in International Relations."

the petitions wouldn't be legal," Ringler said.

"Neither of the party candidates represents the majority of voters, because so many of them didn't go to the polls at the special primary and the seven defeated candidates received a large number of votes," he added.

Walter B. Woodward of Bellville, Townsend-backed candidate at the special primary, ran third in a field of three Republicans

The nominees are J. Harry McGregor of Coshocton county, Republican, and Byron B. Ashbrook, Johnstown, Democrat. McGregor will speak at the American Legion home in Mansfield at 8 p. m. Wednesday at a meeting arranged by the Mansfield League of Women Voters. Ashbrook will be represented at the meeting by John F. Correll, Mansfield.

Two more Republicans were circulating petitions today for the nomination for Richland county sheriff, boosting the field to five. Latest entries in the race are Frank D. Derringer and Olid Davidson, both of Mansfield.

boats, were searching for them Many believed that the Hawkins had taken the men prisoners.

Admiral Harwood confirmed today that before abandoning their ship the Germans set the Wakama afire.

Harwood refused to name the ship which intercepted the Wakama but he indicated that, contrary to other reports, it was not the Hawkins. It was believed, however, that the British deliberately caused confusion regarding the ship which did intercept the Wakama on the grounds of naval secrecy

The newspaper O Jornal of Rio De Janeiro reported that it had learned from a member of the crew of the Hawkins that before the Wakama had been scuttled a British cruiser had sunk the German freighter Wolfsburg. Crews of the Wakama and Wolfsburg were reported to be aboard the same cruiser.

O Jornal did not give details of the reported sinking of the Wolfsburg, which sailed from the Brazilian port of Recife on Feb 3

The Hawkins arrived last night in Guanabara bay here, after a six hour run down the coast from the spot where the Wakama was sunk

Five German merchantmen including the Wakama had left Brazilian ports within nine days, laden with supplies which Germany lacks because of the British blockade. The Wakama left yesterday, carrying minerals, lard, hides, rice and coffee.

It was believed these ships intended to meet at sea and attempt to run the blockade together.

GORGE RAISES FLOOD WATERS

water was caused either by running ice forming a new gorge below Parker or by the sudden release of water some point upstream where a gorge may have let go

Weather Forecaster W S Brotzman at Pittsburgh said he learned from Observer Henry Turk at Parker that the river was stationary after the sudden rise and that the gorge was slipping slightly at long intervals, which might bring some recession in the stream's stage.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—A 70-mile carriage of ice, softened by spring-like temperatures, moved down the Ohio toward its doom today as preparations were made for early resumption of river traffic.

A combination of several large floes and many smaller ones, the mass extended from Aurora, Ind., to a point near Louisville and was causing a minimum of damage as it rolled westward, lockmen reported. The ice was traveling at a speed of about four miles an hour.

The river, raised by rains and gorges but at no point in this section near flood stage, receded as the ice started out. The loss was confined to a few small boat harbors, from which crafts had been removed.

Engineers at Louisville declared the lowest river level in years prevented repetition of ice damage in 1918 when heavy property losses were experienced.

Officials of the Green line, operators of steamer service, announced they expected to resume operations on the river Thursday. Barge operators prepared for movement of crafts.

River traffic has been tied up for nearly a month The largest ice gorge, at Dam 39, Vevay, Ind., started moving out yesterday.

ROOSEVELT GOES FISHING AS HIS NAME GOES INTO FOUR PRIMARIES

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt is leaving this week on his usual southern vacation cruise and taking himself beyond the telephone while the third term die is cast in the Illinois, Nebraska and Wisconsin presidential primaries.

While he fishes and idles in warm waters, his followers will have entered his third term candidacy, beyond recall, in these midwestern states. His name is already entered beyond recall in the New Hampshire primaries, which were closed last midnight.

This would appear to put Mr. Roosevelt directly into a contest for a third term nomination, except that all these acts will be executed without a single word of consent from him. His silence can mean anything and he can return to repudiate everything done in his behalf

His departure will leave official Washington speculating over the part he may play in restoring peace to Europe and what we will make of it if he does. On Feb. 17, his personal representative, Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles, sails for Europe to talk to Mussolini, Daladier, Hitler and Chamberlain on the subject of peace

Reports persist in Washington that Mr. Roosevelt already has received definite peace suggestions from both London and Berlin. It is no secret that he has been visited by James D. Mooney, president of the General Motors overseas corporation, and Thorkild Rieber, chairman of the Texas (oil) company, after these men conferred in Germany with Hitler and Marshal Hermann Goering.

MANSFIELD OHIO TUESDAY FEBRUARY 13 1940

Won't it be wonderful, before very long, to be able to point with pride to Mansfield's attractive railroad passenger stations!

The things that Confucius really said are more along this line: "To see what is right and not to do it, is want of courage."

As to the West Fourth street re-improvement—why not decide on the most practical material for that thoroughfare and get the work done as soon as possible? Those abandoned street car tracks are a constant traffic hazard.

Rotary Club's 20th Anniversary

AS MANSFIELD ROTARY today observes the twentieth anniversary of its organization it is interesting to recall that world-wide Rotary, as it now exists, is another example of the growth of an idea—and an ideal.

Pioneer among service clubs, Rotary's thirty-fifth anniversary observance links closely with the completion of two decades of Mansfield Rotary history, it being next week that has been internationally designated as "Rotary Observance Week," in recognition of the formation of the first club in Chicago, February 23, 1905.

On that date four men, each of a different vocation, met in the office of Paul Harris, a young lawyer with few friends in the big city, and talked over the idea of holding weekly meetings, so as to become better acquainted with men engaged in other lines of business. These meetings rotated among members, thus suggesting the name, "Rotary."

An early thought was that membership should be made up of one man from each recognized business, professional or institutional activity, so that each might represent his vocation in an effort to put the ideal of service into actual practice, in exemplifying the club motto, "He profits most who serves best."

From the single club formed in Chicago in 1905 Rotary has grown to 5,036 clubs, extending into more than sixty-five countries of the world and with present membership exceeding 210,000. Cities and towns in the United States having Rotary clubs now number above three thousand, with restriction of one club to a city, regardless of size.

Rotary's introduction into Mansfield twenty years ago was not unlike the original start of the movement in Chicago fifteen years earlier. It began with the meeting of a few men at the old Vonhof hotel.

The Mansfield club was organized with 24 charter members, 20 of whom are still living, and a majority of these continuing as active or honorary members of the club.

As a club group, and as individuals, it is a recognized obligation of Rotarians to apply the ideal of service to personal, business and community life, with emphasis on high ethical standards in the business or profession which each represents.

The Mansfield club's concentration of attention, for a number of years, has been associated with work in behalf of crippled children, vocational assistance to youths and encouragement of helpful activities among boys of the community.

With a present enrollment of 66 active and five honorary members, Mansfield Rotary is today reviewing its record of twenty years and looking ahead to further opportunities for helpful service—so that the diligence and faith of its founders may be recognized and justified.

Student Carelessness Revealed

SOME BONERS gleaned from the results of a high school opinion poll (not in Mansfield) and reported to a newspaper columnist, deserve more than a laugh.

The boys and girls had reported as favorite radio programs "The Hip Parade," "The Long Rancher," and "I Love a Misery" instead of "Hit Parade," "Lone Ranger" and "I Love a Mystery." Favorite movie stars Don Ameche, Gary Cooper, and Laurel and Hardy came out of the poll as "Achemie," "Copper" and "Laurel and Harpy." Baseball and football, the favorite sports, appeared as "bashball and "foolball." Hiram college, an Ohio institution much in the public prints in recent years because of its progressive educational experiments, was the preferred college of a girl who spelled it "Harem" college.

All these mistakes have the common characteristic of carelessness. The are caused by careless listening, careless reading, careless writing. They are not especially important in themselves, but may be a warning signal. If the same carelessness carries over into the study of mathematics, language, history, science, and so on, some poorly educated young people will graduate from that high school. There are other high schools and other pupils, too, that need to have old-fashioned accuracy and drill emphasized more than is customary in these modern times.

Snowballing Across Streets

PROBABLY because of the unusual amount of snow this winter, more than ordinary attention has been attracted to the schoolboy habit of snowballing across streets on which there is considerable motor traffic.

This has been commented on in Mansfield and action to stop the practice has been taken in a number of other cities—not that the snowballing is objected to because of the danger involved in having snowballs hit cars that chance to be in way, thus possibly causing an accident by distracting the driver's attention.

It is quite unlikely that boys [illegible] snowballing give a thought to [illegible] probabilities, a suggestion [illegible] that is needed—[illegible]

And then again, [illegible] snowballing this winter.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK The area surrounding Madison Square Garden should be named Jack Dempsey Square. It is that now in everything but name. Its fame rests on the glamor of Dempsey's clanging victories. They say the Six Hundred Millionaires had something to do with the Garden's success, so they did. But what would the history of boxing be without Dempsey?

Dempsey came, bringing with him the golden age, and his two iron fists. His kind of fight was based on wolf-flurries of action. Two men climbed into a ring and stayed there until one of them went down. That was Dempsey's way, to rend and destroy. His way is gone now, replaced by polite rules of break, and pardon my glove. And no one, ever will see his like again.

If you walk through the Garden now, at Eighth and Fiftieth, you will see many pictures of many famous fighters, black and white, but most of them will be Dempsey pictures, lean-flanked and swift, with a crew haircut and fists that could hammer a hull.

JUST across the street, facing west, is his own restaurant, unofficial headquarters for most of the colorful and famous characters that make New York the sporting metropolis of the world. Next door is a barbershop, and in the window is an interior picture of the shop, a busy shop, with Dempsey in the first chair. If you walk around the corner until you come to the bus station you will see Dempsey's picture with the manager of the station. You will find it in the book stores, flanked by the literary greats of the ages, and always, always it will be autographed "To My Pal."

Dempsey is a pal to most of the people who know him. Certainly he is a hero and a friend to the newsboys along Eighth avenue. The taxi-drivers know him and have his picture in their cabs. The cops along the street always touch the visors of their caps when they meet him, saying, "Hi, Jack," or "Hi, Champ." He answers them by calling their names correctly. Dempsey is very good at names.

DOWN the street, a block or so from Dempsey's restaurant, is a wax museum. You know what wax museums are. They take famous people, living and dead, and model them, and put clothes on them, and charge admission for people to see.

It is the claim of this museum that in its rooms are all the famous characters who have made history for the last five hundred years. But the legend out front doesn't specify the years. It says, simply, "From the day Columbus discovered America until the day Jack Dempsey opened his restaurant."

You may call it Eighth avenue and Fiftieth street if you care to, that's the way it is on the city maps, and in the Manhattan directories. But to the cab-drivers and the cops, the newsboys and the ex-pugs, and the reporters, it is something a little more intimate and personal than that. It is Dempsey Square.

Dies Committee Strongly Backed

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—So many people object to the Dies committee that there is general wonder why, when the test came in the house of representatives, the vote to continue the committee, even to the extent of giving it $75,000 for expenses in the midst of a spree of appropriation slashing, was so overwhelming.

The answer is very simple. Nearly every representative from the South and West has learned that a lot of his constituents are enthusiastic about the committee's work, and want it continued. Not only that, but a certain percentage of these rooters for the Dies committee are very belligerent about it. It is this minority, curiously enough, which is responsible for the size of the majority in the house for Dies. The members are scared to death of a very belligerent minority -- they are not nearly so much afraid of a passive majority.

THIS is the whole essence of politics. Let us illustrate with a typical district in the deep South, which must be nameless, but whose representative told the writer about it. This congressman had a lot of mail from his district about the Dies committee. As a matter of fact, a great deal of it was critical of the committee. But what jarred him was that about five hundred of his constituents—and he either knew them or checked up on who they were -- were almost fanatical in their letters.

Their line of reasoning, he said, was that the subversive elements were attempting to throttle the Dies committee. Some of them thought it was Communistic influence. Some of them thought it was Nazi—though less of these. Others just thought it was part of a radical plot which aims at the overthrow of this government, and regarded the left wingers of the Roosevelt administration as part and parcel of the plot.

Now these letters, almost without exception, were from Democrats. If they had not been they would not have worried the congressman. All he has to bother about in his district is getting nominated. His district has not sent a Republican to the house since federal bayonets stopped protecting the carpetbaggers.

The point is that this fanatical minority of some five hundred, excited enough to write letters to their congressman, and so completely sold on the real danger to this government from subversive influences that it would be utterly impossible to unsell them, would be almost certain to vote in a unit against their congressman's renomination if he were to fail to vote to give more funds to the Dies committee.

* * *

MOREOVER, it is not so long since most of these partisans of the Dies committee were being thoroughly propagandized by an institution which, in addition to certain racial animosities, preached Americanism and the dangers of subversive influences. Dies is reaping, as a matter of fact, where Hiram W. Evans and other Ku Klux Klan leaders sowed. There is no attempt here to say that the pro-Dies rooters and the old Klansmen are the same groups. They are not. But the preaching of the Klan built up a sentiment which is tinder for the sort of stuff the Dies committee has been bringing out.

How Strong Is America's Maginot Line?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

REMARKABLE THING, that Maginot Line of which the French are so proud. Thousands of men encased within a buried wall, guarding the land they love. It gets you—doesn't it?—the thought of that living barrier winding its secret way beneath the trees and grass, the fury and flame, coiling its strength about the very heart of France.

And we boast that we do not have, or need, a Maginot Line. Yet we have one, tougher than cement, fiercer than steel—a line invisible, for which we have no name; yet on it all our peace and power depend, our dream of Justice, Freedom, and Equality.

Going poetical on you? Not a bit of it! I'm telling you of an actual thing, a vitally important thing THAT GUARDING LINE OF PRINCIPLE ON WHICH THE LIFE OF OUR DEMOCRACY DEPENDS.

It began long ago, that American "Maginot Line." Long before you and I were born. It began with the dreams and revolts of men we never saw . . . with their rebellion against the filth and falsity of an old regime . . . with their hope for a fairer, kinder, cleaner way of life. It started in strange places . . . in peasant's cots and shipwrights' shops . . . within the Mayflower's crowded hull . . . upon a "stern and rock-bound coast." There were no blueprints for its building, no brick and mortar, no engineers. But there were nobler plans than any engineer could have drawn, more lasting material than any contractor could have supplied.

They built with their own sweat and blood and tears, those first dreamers. They gave their own sacrifice and service. They anchored their wall not in soil but in souls . . . in their personal faith and fury, love and compassion. And every deed and word in that early American life either strengthened or weakened AMERICA'S MAGINOT LINE OF DEMOCRACY.

You're getting me now, aren't you? You're thinking back to your own early years when you knew, without questioning, that black was black and white was white. Those years when you loved your Flag as you loved your father . . . when your country's Honor was as precious to you as your mother's happiness . . . when Democracy meant something no decent man dare forget, something at which no hoodlum dare laugh!

You're remembering that time, not so long ago, when hoodlums stayed where they belonged, on the other side of the tracks. When your heart went into your throat as a flag came marching by, and there weren't any Communists to call us a Bunch of Saps. When it wasn't considered Smart to sneer at Love or Honor . . . or giggle at your Country or God AND THE FELLOW WHO SPIT AT DEMOCRACY GOT HIS SPITTER KNOCKED CLEAR OFF HIS FACE!

No Maginot Line in America? Guess again. That wall of principle was America's Maginot Line and, in all this earth, there was no stouter haricade, once! Nor any fiercer defense for decency.

But now? We're older. But are we wiser? Or stronger? We've learned to laugh at old-fashioned principles . . . to sneer and scoff at the things which were sacred to our fathers.

BUT WHAT ARE WE BUYING WITH OUR MODERN SMARTNESS? WERE BUYING DISASTER AND DESPAIR: FOR WITH EACH SNEER SOME PORTION OF OUR HERITAGE IS WEAKENED . . . SOME SECTION OF OUR MAGINOT LINE GOES DOWN.

And that is our real menace . . . not the sabotage of the aliens without . . . but the sneering cynicism of the citizens within . . . the men and women who should be protecting their country with every beat of their hearts instead of tearing it down.

THERE ARE GAPS TODAY, IN THE AMERICAN LINE WHICH NO ENEMY COULD ENTER ONCE AND NO BUILDER HAS WHAT IS NEEDED TO FILL. THOSE GAPS ONLY AMERICAN CITIZENS FAITH CAN RESTORE WHAT AMERICAN CHEAPNESS HAS DESTROYED.

HAVE YOU HAVE I WHAT IT TAKES?

How It Started

"Stumbling Block."

What is a stumbling block?

It may be almost anything from a knothole to a nation.

This makes the usage figurative, which the phrase generally is today; but formerly it was not so.

The original allusion was literal—to stumbling blocks of stone or stumbling stones—the name given to rocks and boulders scattered in the fields and which tripped up those who did not watch their step.

"Stumbling block" and "stumbling stone" are used both figuratively and literally in the Bible.

A Home Worthwhile

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I WENT to visit a friend south across the hills. It was like traveling up and down the crest and trough of great high waves. Shadows were long when I started. That of my car made a parallel line along the deep narrow valleys and up along the slope. Each rail on the nearer side of the old worm fence that marked the road was outlined in snow. Within the sheltered corners were small patches of dry leaves and sometimes tufts of grass that showed a deep dark green.

At the farmer's home I parked my car beside the barn, switched off the lights and walked to the house.

A bright oil lamp was in the room, and back and forth across the lighted window I saw fast moving objects pass. As I drew near I heard the shouts of children laughing and yelling in high glee.

I stepped cautiously upon the porch for I was interested in what game would make a group of children so very happy. The glass door had thin lacy curtains and I could see inside. There was the man I had come to see down on his knees with two boys of about four and six upon his back. He took them riding around the corners of the room so rapidly that in an unguarded second both riders fell headlong upon the floor. Then patiently the father waited for them to remount.

The youngest got on in front and held tightly to his "horse's" ears; the other dug his knees into the steed's ribs and yelled, "Ride 'em, Cowboy," with all his might. And then so fast and furiously did the trusty mount respond that the happy little boys believed they were riding well.

When the noise subsided slightly, I rapped. Then suddenly all was quiet. When my friend opened the door and greeted me, he looked redfaced and surprised. "I guess you think I'm in my second childhood," he apologized, 'makin' all that noise and tearin' up the room. My wife threatens to chase us all out -she says I'm worse than they are. But somehow I enjoy it. I can forget my age when I get down where those two are and almost live in their young world. It's interesting to me - more so than outside entertainment could ever be. Maybe I'm too much of a home body," he added, with a faraway look in his eye, "but I hope the memory of such times as you have seen will bless two other homes that I, perhaps, will never live to see. I know the simple pleasure of their happy childhood will mean more to my boys than all the lands and stock that I could leave to them.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Inside story of the mystery-shrouded cancellation of Father Charles E. Coughlin's recent Sunday broadcast (February 4) is that his ecclesiastical superiors finally have spoken.

Coughlin has been told bluntly that he cannot continue his racial and political fulminations on the air—and remain a Catholic priest. If he does, he will be unfrocked.

This ultimatum was delivered through his censor by Archbishop Edward Mooney of Detroit, Coughlin's diocesan superior, with the full approval of Vatican authorities. Three developments prompted the Archbishop's firm-handed action.

First and foremost was the fear that the priest's anti-Semitic tirades were being construed popularly as having the approval of the Church. This is a matter of grave concern to most Church leaders, who point out that Coughlin's racial views are contrary to Catholic doctrine.

Second is Coughlin's reputed connection with the Christian Front, some of whose members are now under indictment for conspiracy to overthrow the government and for stealing government munitions. Coughlin's defense of those under indictment has enraged his superiors.

Third is the fact that he has been guilty of disobedience in connection with his radio activities, specifically with a broadcast on January 28 in which he attacked the religious character of Supreme Court Justice Frank Murphy.

Archbishop Mooney had ordered the deletion of certain portions of this speech. Coughlin had agreed to abide by the archbishop's ruling, but then turned round, defied instructions and delivered the previously censored references to Murphy. On the following Sunday, February 4, Coughlin's entire speech was censored and the priest was forced to cancel it.

The rejected speech, according to inside sources, was another defense of the Christian Front.

The crackdown followed a long controversy within the Catholic hierarchy on the wisdom of taking the radio priest off the air. It is no secret that many Church leaders feared that such forthright action might create a schism. However, this policy of temporizing has now been abandoned because of the greater harm his superiors believe his radio harangues are doing the Church.

This much is certain: If Coughlin remains on the air in the future, he must steer clear of racial prejudice or else suffer the consequences.

* * *

Apostolic Delegate.

CHURCH concern over Coughlin has disclosed another situation involving the apostolic delegate in Washington, Amleto Giovanni Cicognani.

Some of the clerical higher-ups feel that he side-stepped the Coughlin issue for much too long, and favor his recall.

Pope Pius XII, who as papal secretary of state came to the United States in 1936 partly for the purpose of disciplining Coughlin, is known to disapprove the priest's radio talks, and it is reported also that he has been disappointed at the failure of the apostolic delegate to take some restraining action.

Louisiana Scandals.

ONE of the most important chapters in the long and variegated story of the Louisiana scandals still remains partly untold. It is the chapter of "hot oil", and just at this moment it is a question of considerable concern to Washington officials.

For Louisiana is now seething through one of its bitterest election campaigns—a gubernatorial run-off between the brother of the late Huey P. Long and Sam Jones, an independent attorney, scheduled for February 20.

Behind Earl Long is the old Huey Long gang, and more than anyone else, Mayor Maestri of New Orleans, most powerful figure in Louisiana. Behind Jones are most of the other candidates who ran in the first primary, plus all the elements rebelling against Hueyism.

Unquestionably the biggest economic issue in the campaign is oil—particularly hot oil. Maestri is one of the biggest oil operators in the state.

Maestri also served for seven years as commissioner of the Louisiana conservation department, in which capacity he was supposed to guard and administer the mineral resources of the state.

However, the justice department is investigating charges that he has been involved in selling large amounts of "hot oil"—that is, oil in excess of the amount permitted under state laws.

All of this has caused bitter debate and criticism in Louisiana, where small operators freely charge that the federal government is out to penalize the small fry and white-wash the big fellow.

Echoes of this have come back to Washington so forcibly that there has been inner circle debate over the idea of issuing a public statement, showing the profits made by Maestri from oil, and also pointing out the flaws in the hot oil law which make it difficult to indict him.

FOREMEN TOLD THEIR JOB'S TO KNOW WORKERS

Gas Company Official Places Human Relations as Major Task of Supervisors.

Approximately 150 members of the Mansfield-Shelby Foremen's club were told last night that their future in industry depended on their ability to understand human relations.

"The acid test of your future will be determined on how well you are able to understand and cope with problems in human relations," E. M. Tharp of Columbus, vice president and general manager of the Ohio Fuel Gas company said at the club's monthly dinner meeting at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Tharp, who spoke on "Airlining Your Human Relations," declared that the "biggest problem" confronting supervision today is the ability to understand the problems of fellow workers.

"Contact the borderline of relationship. Get in close with your men and bring them close to you in understanding, guidance and counsel," he said.

Settling only last week a strike at the gas company's Toledo division, Tharp said that the differences arose from "faulty supervision."

Hits at Favoritism.

"A supervisor showed favoritism among his men. You can't do that and expect to get along with men. You must guide and counsel your men and understand his problems or you are not capable of filling foremanship responsibilities as demanded by industry. That is the first principle of supervision."

He told the foremen they were the contact men at the point of supervision — the point where most labor disputes begin, and the most important link in the contact with men who are the objects of labor agitation.

He warned that prevention of labor disputes was far better than a cure for any difficulties that arise.

"Labor trouble starts when supervision fails," he declared.

Following the luncheon, a motion picture "The American Way," a two-reel travelogue depicting Air Travel by American Air Lines was shown by Thomas J. Harris of Cleveland, a representative of the company.

The next meeting of the club will be held March 4 at which time members will entertain their wives. Miss Vivien Kellems of New York is scheduled to talk.

WHAT "FROZEN SLEEP" IS ALL ABOUT—

IF YOU HAD BUT SIX WEEKS TO LIVE

That's Verdict Needed Before Treatment Will Be Tried.

Used on Cancer Victims, Method Taught to 100 Doctors.

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

NEW YORK—Not more than six weeks to live.

This is the medical verdict which has been the passport for most of those who have tried frozen sleep, the human hibernation experiment in biology and medicine.

The passport of death was required by the originators of frozen sleep, Doctors Temple Fay and Lawrence W. Smith, of Philadelphia, who have done most of the experimenting and who, since they started a year ago, have taught their technique to well over 100 physicians from all parts of the United States.

The passport requirement sharply limits exploration of the possibilities in hibernation, for those with six weeks to live are mostly too far gone to react like a person who might still have a chance for life.

Nevertheless in one of the speediest explorations in medical records, with more than a dozen large hospitals now quietly trying frozen sleep, some of the boundaries of cold as a remedy for disease are beginning to appear, and hibernation has been used on other cases than cancer.

The technique of putting a person into iced sleep has also improved. It started with packing a naked torso in cracked ice. That was too uncomfortable and shivering interfered with getting down to the 89 degree temperature sought. Anesthetics were next used to start the sleep. The first type of anesthetic caused one death, indirectly, and different, safer anesthesia is now used. Cold blankets, made with networks of refrigerating pipes attached to one side, and air-conditioned rooms are also being tried for cooling to the hibernation stage.

Before the experiments were started, it was widely believed a human being would die if his internal temperature dropped below 95. The present known fatal temperature has been pushed down into the low seventies. This was discovered on a person whose cancer was so bad that test tube experiments indicated the low seventies were essential to kill the malignant cells.

What cold is safe for humans in general is not known, since probably fewer than 100 persons have been hibernated. But present experience indicates the life line is in the high eighties.

Two ills besides cancer have been reported treated with frozen sleep. There may be others, but they have not been disclosed.

Two men with narcotic addiction were freed completely by five days' hibernation. They had no painful after-symptoms. A woman psychotic, screaming and fighting, woke up from frozen sleep of seven days, entirely sane. Her case, however, was a special type of psychosis, which followed a surgical operation. It proves nothing about effects of cold on other mental troubles.

For cancer it is definitely established that pain is stopped, sometimes for months. The growths shrink, occasionally disappearing so that they cannot be detected.

It is believed that microscopic traces of the cancer remain. These finally grow again. But death may be delayed, last days made more comfortable.

What else is possible for cancer remains in enigma which it is expected only years of trial will reveal. However, some of those with the six weeks' death passports have lived for months.

The cold does for cancer much the same thing as X-rays and radium, by killing the younger tissue cells. But there is one vital difference. The rays damage or kill all the tissues they touch. The cold leaves normal flesh, blood and bone unharmed, attacking apparently only some malignant cells.

It appears possible that many of man's germ enemies will be killed by cold that he can stand. To learn this, the experiments must be tried on healthy persons, something no one has yet dared to do.

At the University of Rochester animal frozen sleep experiments are starting. These should go far toward disclosing the safe limits for extending the hibernation experiments to humans.

Certain outstanding details about humans are coming to light. Emerging from hibernation, they can swallow, for a time, only in slow-motion. In frozen sleep their speed of blood flow is reduced by nearly half. Basal metabolism seems down by 20 to 25 per cent.

Several inductions of frozen sleep appear to initiate some anemia. Evidence is accumulating that normal functions of internal organs continue, but at slowed rates which at first escaped detection. Eight hours is the longest hibernation tried. No one knows the limit.

The one biggest danger at present is the misleading ease and safety which even an expert observer imagines he sees when he visits an experienced hibernation clinic. These peacefully sleeping persons are really under control each minute of the day and night. That expert control is not apparent. The fear is that observers who conclude hibernation is really easy will reap a crop of deaths.

A cancer patient in a Springfield, Ill., hospital ends five days of frozen sleep as his doctors remove a covering of cracked ice. New idea in the technique of administering frozen sleep is sketched here. The patient is placed between two blankets containing refrigeration coils. The blankets are then zipped shut.

They're Figure Skate Champs

Here are the national figure skating champions for 1940. Eugene Turner of Los Angeles won the men's senior title and Joan Tozzer, 19, of Boston, the the women's crown in competition at Cleveland. Miss Tozzer has won the ice trophy for three straight years.

SHOWS TROPHY

O. P. S. Receives Award From National Safety Council.

A huge bronze trophy won by the Ohio Public Service company in a safety contest sponsored by the National Safety council among class A electric companies throughout the nation, was on display today in a O.P.S. window on South Park street.

The trophy is surrounded by safety appliances and first aid equipment used by employes of the company in their work.

C. L. Shutt, safety supervisor in the Mansfield division, said the award was made to the company which is comprised of 12 districts in northern Ohio in competition with 21 other utilities in the nation.

He said the record was attained by the workers in the period from July, 1938, to July, 1939, during which time only seven accidents, three of which were fatal, occurred.

COURT BRINGS TRADE HARMONY

Opens Way For Increased Relations Between U. S., South America.

NEW YORK —(AP)— A "good neighbors" court that has hundreds of judges — and no courtroom—is smoothing the way for increased trade between the United States and the 21 nations of South America.

Although it has operated so unobstrusively it is rarely even mentioned in popular discussion of Pan-American affairs, the court is likely to be very important, if war does the expected thing and turns Latin-American business from Europe to Uncle Sam.

Business squabbles are its specialty. It's machinery is designed mainly for the convenience of the "little fellow" who can't afford long and costly litigation. But it is open to all who trade between the Americas.

Each side in a dispute agrees in advance to accept the court's decision. There are no appeals.

The name of the new court is the Inter-American Commercial Arbitration Commission. Discussed since the first Pan-American Finance conference at Washington in 1915, it was finally set up in 1934 under the sponsorship of the Inter-American conference at Montivideo in 1933.

Its development has been slow. In fives years, its largest case involved not more than $20,000. But gradually, like oil falling drop by drop on a machine, it has smoothed the channels of trade.

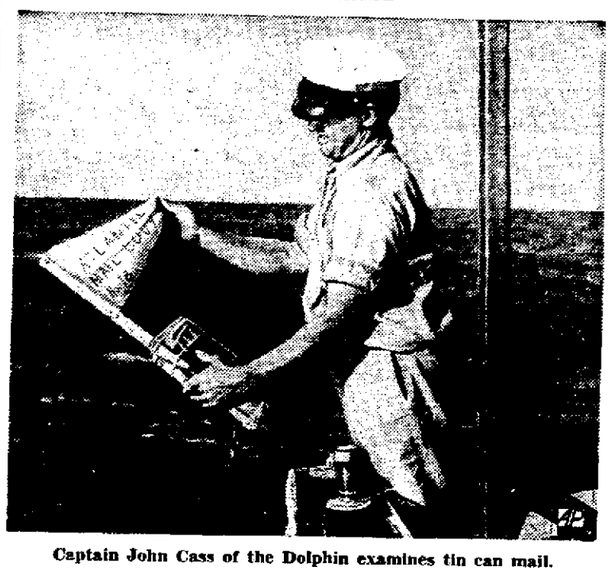
HOMESICK SAILORS MAIL THEIR LETTERS, VIA OCEAN, IN TIN CANS



Captain John Cass of the Dolphin examines tin can mail.

(By Associated Press)

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—Many a fishing cruiser captain off Miami Beach acts as an unofficial mailman these troubled days at sea.

The cruiser skippers keep a sharp lookout, not only for fish, but also for tiny buoys carrying the "Atlantic mail."

Merchant seamen, some of them homesick American sailors, place their letters in tin cans, seal the receptacles with wax, weight them with scrap iron, attach white flags, and toss them overboard in the hope they will be picked up offshore and mailed home.

Some of the letters are sent by seamen aboard freighters from belligerent nations, men who hope that their messages will reach relatives at home.

"Atlantic Buoy No. 18," picked up by Captain John Cass of the fishing cruiser Dolphin after the can had been floating four days, contained 32 Christmas greetings. It's pictured here.

GETS IRON CROSS

LONDON—(U.P.)—An Iron Cross has been sent to the Red Cross for any value it may have. The cross, evidently issued during the World war to a Prussian officer, was sent in anonymously to the Lord Mayor's fund for the Red Cross. It will be sold as a curio.

SHOOTING UPSETS HOME

CAMDEN, N. J. —(U.P.)— A wife won a divorce recommendation when she testified that her husband went out at night to shoot darts. She testified that the darts, however, were the kind used by Cupid and the target was a pretty waitress.

COYOTE ATTACKS GIRL

LUSK, Wyo. — (U.P.) — Mildred Barnes, 12-year-old ranch girl, now believes the old western adage of "never trust a coyote." Her pet coyote shrugged off years of training and attacked her, tearing her legs and lacerating her throat before it was shot and killed.

BERLIN SEES "PYGMALION"

LONDON—(U.P.)—George Bernard Shaw is the only contemporary British dramatist to have had a play produced in Germany since the outbreak of the war. His "Pygmalion" is being played at the Deutches Theater, in Berlin.

JOB RANGE 6 TO 71.

SALEM, Ore. —(U.P.)— Statistics of the Oregon State Employment Service challenge the assumption that a man over 45 cannot get a job. Its age extremes for placements this year are from 6 to 71 years. The 6-year-old "supered" in a street scene in the filming of "Abe Lincoln of Illinois."

Mother Bad Influence He Feels

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A year and a half ago my wife and I arranged a legal separation. I didn't demand a divorce, though I had plenty of cause, for the sake of our little daughter at that time aged six. I allow the child to stay with her mother, just because I'm a fool I suppose, and old-fashined But I know the environment is the worst possible for my beloved little girl.

Her mother's whole idea for the child is clothes, a permanent wave, even facials for her baby face, and the underthings she buys for her (pink satin, lace-trimmed) look to me as if they were intended for "ladies of the evening."

When my little daughter comes to see me once a week, her whole talk is about clothes, parties, even cocktails which she laps up if any dregs are left in the glasses after her mother's parties. No influence could be worse for a most gifted child.

I don't want to re-open this question of the separation again, but I feel I'm doing right by the child who has a fine mind which should be cultivated. She should be given a chance to grow mentally instead of being taken to style shows and lapping up the dregs of cocktails.

I like your column because you don't sob. What do you suggest?

W. J. K.

I wonder if your trouble is an excess of patience or if, without realizing it, the fate of your little daughter presents too much fret and anxiety to re-open. It's so easy to let dreadful things just slide. Please don't lose a moment without consulting the best lawyer you can afford. At least the child could be put in a good boarding school. Mothers such as you describe have no maternal instict. Their children are an extension of their own vanity. The cast recalls that grewsome horror story by Henry James "The Turn of the Screw."

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"I don't know that I like this," Dicky growled after I had hurriedly told him and Harry Underwood of the boon which Philip Veritzen had granted the Princess Olina. "Mary has the right to all the limelight in that play," Dicky added, "and it looks to me as if Olina were planning to hog a good slice of it for herself."

"I don't think she can," I said confidently. "Mary dominates that scene entirely. Olina will only enhance the background and provide a more beautiful setting."

"Optimism is a good thing," my husband said ironically, "but you can have too much of it. Now—"

"Pipe down!" Harry Underwood interrupted. "Here she comes!"

Olina, her royal dignity patently in abeyance, was almost running as she came into the library.

"Katie told me the harps were here," she said breathlessly. "Oh-h! there they are! How beautiful!"

She was in the midst of the harps in a second, stroking the wood and touched the strings. I gave a signaling nod to Dicky and Harry, then spoke to her softly.

"Do you need any of us while you make your choice?"

Her decision was prompt.

"No indeed," she said, "except that I'd like to have these men within call when I want to have the harp I choose put into its place. Where is it to go?"

When we were safely outside the door, Dicky gave me an approving pat upon my shoulder.

"You're an understanding wench," he said fondly, and Harry Underwood grinned an approving assent.

"Did you see the kid's eyes?" Harry asked. "If they'd been any bigger, they'd have said right out over her cheeks."

"She hasn't seen a harp since her exile," I explained, "and her mother tells me she loved to play hers."

"We'll probably have a perpetual solo concert from now on," Dicky commented cynically. "But I suppose we ought to be thankful that she didn't set her youthful musical heart upon a saxaphone."

"Whither away, Fair One?" he gibed.

"I have to telephone Philip Veritzen," I said. "I promised to notify him the minute the harps should arrive."

"That means, I supose," he rejoined, "that the Great White Light of Broadway will soon favor us with his presence."

"As soon as he can get here," I said, and my husband clutched Harry Underwood's arm.

"Let's get far, far away—or as far away as we can," he implored. "I am very fond of deah old Phil, but if I have to listen to him this morning, I simply shall curl up and die the death."

"Then please get out quickly," I urged, laughing. They followed me into the hall and then went upstairs while I telephoned Philip Veritzen.

"The harps have arrived," I said. "and Olina is even now choosing the one she wishes."

"I shall come over immediately," he answered. "Thank you for calling me. Goodbye." and the click of the receiver told me he was gone.

Mary's voice sounded a cautious "Sst!" from the stairway above me and, when I looked up, she gestured inquiringly toward the library.

"Olina's choosing her harp," I said, "and your father-in-law is on his way over. I must wait here until she's made her choice so I can send the others back, and you would better dress for the fray."

"I'll do that litle thing," she said, and vanished, just as Olina came out of the library door.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, February 14.

A very lively and ambitious day, but not without its setbacks and dangers, is forecast. While things may move at high pressure, there also will be tenacious obstacles and delays to reckon with. The mind will be well stimulated for really creative work.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy an interesting and eventful year, with much progress and ingenuity. But be prepared for some delays, probable postponements and tenacious obstacles.

A child born on this day may have a studious and friendly nature. It should have business ability, making a good success of its affairs.

HANDLE "HOT CASH"

NEWPORT, R. I. —(U.P.)— Firemen here were called on to handle some "hot money." A short circuit set fire to the interior of an electric cash register, automatically locking it. Firemen had to shut off the current before business could be resumed. No money was lost.

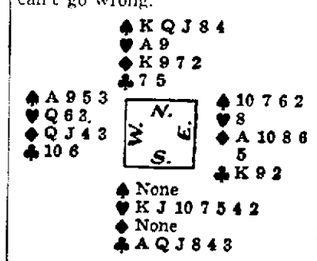
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

BY Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

A TIME NOT TO COVER

If you have no lower honor in your hand, which might be promoted into a trick-taker, and if it is virtually certain your partner cannot have both such a card and enough length to protect it, there is no sense in covering the declarer's lead of an honor in his trump suit. By so doing, you simply eliminate the guesswork from his problem about how to play his suit, making it so easy that he can't go wrong.



(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

With such immense distributional values, Gilbert P. Inglis, of the Union League club team in New York, bid 2-Hearts in the South to start this deal in a rubber game. North made the positive response of 2-Spades. Then South bid 3-Clubs, North 3-Spades, South 4-Hearts and North jumped to 7-Hearts, which West doubled.

When the spade A was led, Mr. Inglis trumped it, then led the heart J to induce a cover. Had West played small, there would have been a tough problem. West had already shown the spade A, which might have been the main reason for his double, and might also have held the diamond A or club K, or both. The trumps might have been evenly divided, with East holding the Q.

But West simplified it by playing the Q. Mr. Inglis call the A from dummy, discarded three clubs on spades, took a club finesse and the club A, ruffed the club J, ruffed a diamond, then ran the rest of his hearts, making the grand slam. A more far-seeing West would not even have doubled the contract, which might possibly tip off the declarer on how to play the hand, and would not even have thought of covering the lead of the trump J.

PAINT STAINING

Method Preserves Grain Effect on Woodwork.

There is a method of paint-staining woodwork that has been developed for wood with an interesting grain whether it is hard or soft. Colors may be chosen to blend with any scheme desired. Equal parts of turpentine and linseed oil are used to thin paint to the consistency of stain.

The mixture is brushed onto the surface of the wood and allowed to remain there for several minutes before the surplus is removed with a soft cloth. Many unique decorative effects may be obtained after a little experimentation.

Different Dessert Suggestions

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

Cakes and desserts for special occasions take plenty of time and effort, but when the dish turns out a success and wins compliments, all the trouble seems well worthwhile. Here are some swell sweets that you might use for parties this month.

Blitz Torte comes first. It is made with one-half cup butter, one cup confectioners' sugar, four eggs yolks, one cup flour, one teaspoon baking powder, three tablespoons milk, grated rind of a lemon, one cup granulated sugar, four egg whites, beaten stiff, and three-fourths cup walnuts. Cream butter and confectioners' sugar. Beat egg yolks until light and creamy and add to creamed mixture, beating until fluffy. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk and lemon rind. Spread in two greased 8x8 inch pans. Fold granulated sugar into stiffly-beaten egg whites and spread over batter. Springle with nutmeats and bake in 300 degrees F. oven about 45 minutes. Cool and spread chilled custard between layers. Serve in squares.

Baked Orange Dish.

Baked Orange Marie requires eight oranges for as many servings. With a sharp knife cut off tops and remove meat, leaving shells clean. Combine orange meat with 16 stoned and shredded dates, three tablespoons seeded raisins, three tablespoons each chopped walnuts and grated coconut. Fill orange shells. Bake in a dish with one-half inch water in bottom, in slow oven for 45 minutes. Top with meringue and sprinkle with coconut. Return to oven to brown. Serve hot or cold. Or top each orange with a marshmallow in lieu of meringue. To make meringue use two egg whites beaten until frothy and one-fourth cup sugar, flavor with teaspoon grated orange or lemon peel.

Coupes St. Pierre is next. It is made with one cup sugar, four tablespoons flour, one-eighth teaspoon salt, two tablespoons melted butter, five tablespoons lemon juice, grated rind of a lemon, three well-beaten egg yolks, beaten with two tablespoons glycerine; one and one-half cups milk, three egg whites beaten stiff with one and one-half tablespoons glycerine. Add sugar, flour and salt to butter; add lemon juice and rind and blend well. Beat egg yolks with glycerine until light and lemon colored. Add blended sugar mixture to egg yolks and milk, and stir well. Fold in egg whites which have been beaten with glycerine until they are stiff, and pour into greased custard cups. Place cups in pan of hot water and bake in 350 degree F. oven for 45 minutes. When baked, each dessert will have custard on bottom and spongs cake on top.

Peanut Butter Recipe.

Peanut Butter Blanc Mange is made with two and three-fourths cups scalded milk, three tablespoons cornstarch, one-third cup sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-half cup peanut butter, one-half cup cold milk, one-half teaspoon vanilla. Mix cornstarch, sugar and salt. Add small amount of scalded milk, blend thoroughly. Add to remaining milk in double boiler, cook 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Cool. Place peanut butter in bowl, add one-half of the cold milk, whip with rotary beater until smooth; add remaining milk; whip until smooth. Add cooled milk mixture. Blend. Add vanilla. Chill. Serve with cream, plain or whipped. Serves six.

TREE PLANTING OVER 5 YEARS TOPS BILLION

Total for 1939 Exceeds 125 Millions With Michigan Holding First Place.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON The U S Forest Service carried forward the national reforestation program last year by planting 125,951,000 trees.

During the year the service planted 131,707 acres of burned over and cut over land in trees, average of 950 trees per acre. The average cost was one and a quarter cents a tree.

During the past five years federal agencies under direction of the Forest Service have planted more than 1,000,000,000 trees in the reforestation of 807,098 acres in the national forests.

Seeding Not Practical.

Only a small part of reforestation was through seeding, most of it being in the placing of small trees. Direct seeding was found impractical in most instances because mice, squirrels and other rodents ate the seeds.

The Forest Service estimated that about 3,500,000 acres in the national forests still are in need of planting to bring the land into production for timber and protect watersheds.

The three species most commonly planted last year were the longleaf pine, 28,598,000, jack pine, 22,975,000, and the Norway pine, 22,814,000. Others included the shortleaf pine, 8,419,000; slash pine, 7,833,000, northern white pine, 7,749,000, ponderosa pine, 7,267,000, and white spruce, 7,236,000.

Smaller quantities of Douglas fir, western white pine, Jeffrey pine, loblolly pine, cedar, Engelman spruce, Sitka and blue spruce and hardwoods such as black locust, oaks, black cherry, yellow poplar and cucumber magnolia were planted.

Michigan Planting Largest.

The largest planting in any one state was on the Huron, Manistee, Ottawa, Marquette and Hiawatha national forests of Michigan with 31,498 acres, or nearly one-quarter of the national total. Wisconsin was second with 16,633 acres and Mississippi third with 12,922 acres.

Federal plantings in 30 other states in 1939 were: Alabama, 3,961 acres; Arizona, 55, Arkansas, 248; California, 3,132, Colorado, 4,249, Georgia, 153, Idaho, 4,193; Illinois 1,140, Indiana, 1,336, Kentucky, 73, Louisiana, 12,760, Minnesota, 10,775, Missouri, 5,296, Montana, 1,805, Nebraska, 1,079, Nevada, 11, New Mexico, 114, North Carolina, 301; Ohio, 1,194; Oregon, 2,406, Pennsylvania, 1,096, South Carolina, 463; South Dakota, 2,056; Texas, 6,210, Tennessee, 56; Utah, 158; Virginia, 120; Washington, 5,108, West Virginia, 445, Wyoming, 679.

HAD FUN, TOO

Wed 60 Years, Ohioan Tells of Courtship Incident.

KENTON (NS)—The perils of one-arm driving in these days of preambulatory courtship are as nothing compared to the perils of courting 60 years ago, when falling over a cow on the way to the girl friend's home was just a more-or-less expected hazard.

Looking back on his years of married life on the occasion of his 60th anniversary, George Koch, of near Kenton, recalled with a reminiscent chuckle that that happened to him. But Koch, like many others, still thinks that "the good old old days" had a slight edge on conditions of today.

"I was riding over to see Margaret," he grinned, "when my horse stumbled and I went end over end into the mud of the road, losing my composure, temper and hat. I felt around to see what had tripped me, and there was a cow, lying in the middle of the road, and still chewing her cud!"

Movies, roadsters radios, Ben Bernie and Charlie McCarthy were unknown, of course, but Koch believes that, still and all, they had a pretty fair time. A conversation in front of an open fire, spiced with bites of apple or popcorn, has its better points, as even a jitterbug will admit.

Koch also recalled that he supplied the horse and hat, but not the cow.

DEEP LOTS NO LONGER NEEDED

Replacing of Barns by Garages Changes Economy.

Residential lots over 150 feet in depth are usually undesirable in a subdivision unless they are one-quarter of an acre or more in size, Federal Housing Administration officials say. Replacement of barns by garages has made deep lots unnecessary.

If consistent with economical land subdivision residential lots of 50 or 60 feet in width should not greatly exceed 130 feet in depth. Lots of from 100 to 120 feet in depth will usually be found satisfactory for single-family dwellings.

GRENADE AT UNIVERSITY

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—St Louis University officials took no chances with a relic found in a cellar of a university building. It was a live World war grenade — presumably saved by a veteran who later attended the university. The grenade was turned over to police who disassembled it.

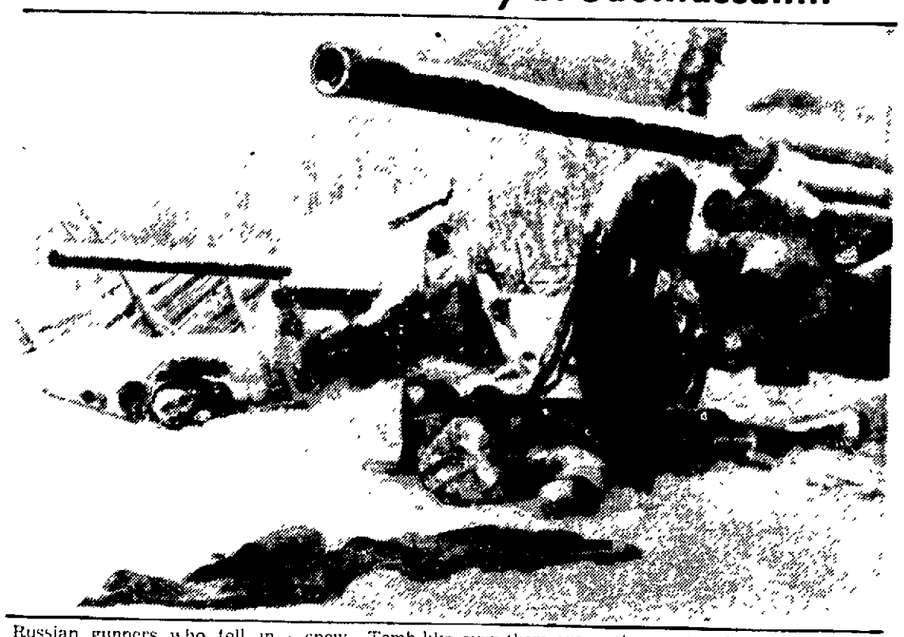
After Rout of Red Army at Suomussalmi



Russian gunners who fell in the carnage at Suomussalmi lie grotesquely stiffened in the snow. Tomb-like over them are the long barrels of guns they had manned. The Finns turned the captured cannon on their would-be conquerors as they routed the Reds' 44th Division.

THEATERS

Ellen Drew's holiday gifts to friends in England were cases of American canned fruits. She made up her shopping list after learning that California oranges had been selling for a shilling each in London . . . Alice Faye has one distinction to which no other actress can lay claim. The star of "Little Old New York" the picture which comes here the end of the week, has had a big howitzer in the Maginot line named after her. She received a letter from a former waiter in her favorite Hollywood cafe. He stated that the company howitzer had been named "La Petite Alice."

"Broadway Melody" at Best.

The "Broadway Melody" to top all former Broadway Melody pictures is that of "1940" which is the current show at the Ohio theater. Eleanor Powell who made her debut so successfully in "Broadway Melody of 1936," is a girl with a new and more vibrant personality. Fred Astaire and George Murphy dance as they never have before. The "Begin the Beguine" number, starring Powell and Astaire, is an unusual creation. The chorus girls' faces are painted with dark grease paint, then sprayed with a solution of 14 carat gold.

Adventure In Canada.

Richard Arlen and Andy Devine share starring honors in the drama of the Canadian northwoods," "Man From Montreal" which opens Wednesday at the Madison theater for a two-day run. Unusual action scenes, romance and a strong element of suspense are said to be combined in this picture which has Kay Sutton and Anne Gwynne in the leading feminine roles. Highlights of the story include fights between mounted police and fur thieves. The second feature is "Charlie McCarthy, Detective," with Charlie and Edgar Bergen as the leads.

"The Women" Returns.

Dramatically turning the spotlight on women, their lives and what they do with them, "The Women," starring Norma Shearer, Joan Crawford and Rosalind Russell, and based on the smash Broadway stage play begins a three-day run at the Majestic theater. The story shows the fair sex in all of its moods and with all of its foibles. It finds her in swank beauty salons in exclusive gown shops, in the privacy of boudoir and bath. The second feature is Joel McCrea and Brenda Marshall in "Espionage Agent."

Plays Double Role.

Emotional drama of the highest order comes to the screen at the Ritz theater for a two-day run, Wednesday and Thursday, starring Elizabeth Bergner and Michael Redgrave. The picture takes up the problems which result when twin sisters fall in love with the same man. The sisters, both played by Miss Bergner, are Sylvina and Martina. Identical in appearance, they are of distinctly different characters. By skillful change of voice, by using different sets of mannerisms she makes them two utterly different girls. The second feature is "Rio" with Sigrid Gurie, Basil Rathbone, Victor McLaglen and Leo Carrillo.

March-Bruce Romance.

Fredric March and Virginia Bruce romp through the merriest adventures of the season in "There Goes My Heart," a comedy romance which begins Wednesday and runs through Thursday at the Park theater. The story casts Virginia as a madcap heiress who tries to run out on her fortune and March as a reporter who tries to run out on his boss. The second feature is "Zenobia" with Oliver Hardy, Harry Langdon, Billie Burke, Alice Brady, James Ellison, Jean Parker and June Lang.
